SOVIET FLEET ON WAY TO SPAIN

Carries Heavy Cargo For Government Forces
FRANCE EXPECTED TO DECLINE REQUEST FOR ASSISTANCE

Paris, Oct. 26.

L'Echo de Paris has received an unconfirmed despatch from its correspondent in Biarritz, which it publishes to-day, stating that Russia has demanded the use of French ports for Soviet commercial war fleets.

It is stated that M. Yves Delbos, the French Foreign Minister, considers the demand unacceptable, due to the fact that the Franco-Russian treaty does not apply to the case.—United Press.

AID FOR LEFTISTS

Port Said, Oct. 26.

Two Russian steamers passed through the Suez Canal to-day en route to Barcelona, bearing supplies for the Government forces.

It is reported that six other steamers with cargo for Spain are due this week.—United Press.

Istanbul Evidence

Istanbul, Oct. 26.

It is reported by the port authorities that 15 Soviet freighters, fully loaded, passed through the Sea of Marmara on their way to Spain from October 1 to 26.—United Press.

"Fascist Arrangements"

Moscow, Oct. 26.

The Portuguese severance of diplomatic relations with Madrid and also the anti-Russian charges made by the Lisbon Government, are generally termed "Fascist arrangements" in the capital of the Soviet Union. It is noteworthy that the charges are neither denied nor affirmed.—United Press.

Portugal's Charges

London, Oct. 26.

The contention that the Spanish civil war is the outcome of Soviet influence in Spanish affairs, is contained in the Portuguese note to the International Non-Intervention Committee in London, under the presidency of Lord Plymouth, despatched by the Lisbon Government in response to charges by the Soviet of Portuguese infractions of the non-intervention pact.

Portugal's note claims that the U.S.S.R. methodically prepared a leftist revolution in Spain, and built up a vast organization, "supplied with rich means of propaganda and action." In support of this contention, the note alleges, the famous Communist, M. Bela Kun, arrived in Barcelona in March, with other Soviet agents. The note further alleges that the Soviet Ambassador, M. Rosenberg, is "the hidden spirit" behind the Madrid Government and that he has even participated in Cabinet meetings.

The note is regarded in diplomatic circles as mainly a statement of the attitude of the Portuguese Government.—Reuter.

Quezon Puts Off Trip

HEAVY PRESSURE OF BUSINESS

Manila, Oct. 26.

President Manuel Quezon has indefinitely postponed his trip to China, owing to pressure of business. The President has signed the Assembly's special Bill granting Filipino citizenship to Mr. Francis Burton Harrison, former Governor-General, thus fulfilling Mr. Harrison's promise to President Quezon in 1912 that he would live permanently in the Philippines if Government House were ever occupied by a Filipino.—United Press.

MORE TROUBLE IN BOMBAY

EIGHT STABBING INCIDENTS

Bombay, Oct. 26.

After three days of quietude, disorders again broke out here to-day. There were eight cases of stabbing, six of which occurred after nightfall.—Reuter's Bulletin Service.

Recognition Of Leftists Possible

BRITAIN REACTS TO REBUFF LABOUR TAKES OTHER STAND

London, Oct. 26.

The Evening News to-day says it is hinted in official circles that Britain may recognise the provisional Rightist Government in Spain. Britain considers less distasteful the prospect of recognising the Government of General Francisco Franco since the Madrid Government so brusquely refused the British offer to help in the exchange of prisoners and hostages, the paper asserts.—United Press.

LEFTIST SYMPATHY

Paris, Oct. 26.

A resolution calling upon the British and French Governments to take steps to re-establish complete freedom of trade in favour of the Spanish Government, in consequence of the failure of the Non-Intervention Agreement, was adopted to-day by a joint meeting of the International Federation of Trade Unions and Labour, International.

The resolution also invites trade unions throughout the world to prevent supplies being sent to the Spanish rebels.—Reuter.

EXCHANGE DISCUSSED

London, Oct. 26.

The Spanish Ambassador, Senor Azcarate, paid a visit to the Foreign Office to-day when it is understood Mr. Anthony Eden discussed with him the British appeal to both parties engaged in the civil war in Spain for an exchange of prisoners held as hostages and the reply of the Madrid Government maintaining release of prisoners held in the capital would amount in effect to helping the insurgents.

The Foreign Secretary is believed to have pressed Senor Azcarate strongly on the matter and to have urged that the Madrid Government should take some measures calculated to reassure anxieties aroused outside Spain regarding the safety of the large number of prisoners in Madrid. The numbers of these prisoners are unofficially estimated at 14,000.

In the meantime no reply to the British appeal has been received from the authorities of the anti-government forces, but it is understood representations have met with good will.—British Wireless.

PRINCE RECOVERING

Copenhagen, Oct. 26.

Prince Valdemar of Denmark, great-uncle of King Edward VIII, who has been seriously ill with bronchitis, is now out of danger. He is 78 years of age.—Reuter.

REBELS ARREST BRITONS

DRIVER IS SHOT TO DEATH

OFFICIALS NOW FREED

Talavera, Oct. 26.

A British military attaché in Madrid and an American banker, who were motoring from Madrid to Aranjuez, are reported to have been arrested by insurgents.

They were refused permission to return to Madrid, but were later given provisional liberty under an officer's supervision.

Later,

Actually a party of five neutrals was arrested.

The British diplomat, Captain Lance, the American banker, Mr. William Hall, the British journalist, Mr. Denis Weaver, and two American newspapermen, Mr. James Minifie and Mr. Henry Gorrell are all in the insurgents' hands.

Their capture is due to the unexpectedly swift advance of the rebels.

Captain Lance and Mr. Hall were in one car and the driver thought they were well within Government territory when they encountered the insurgents.

Mr. Gorrell was in a car by himself and his chauffeur escaped back to Madrid.

In the third car, in which the two American newspapermen were riding, the driver was shot dead.

All the passengers waved their handkerchiefs as a sign of surrender and all were taken to Talavera de la Reina, where they are at provisional liberty.—Reuter Special.

QUEEN MARY GETS BUFFETING

London, Oct. 26.

A heavy south-western gale swept the Channel to-day, forcing all small ships in the Straits of Dover to take shelter. Passengers on the cross-channel steamers had very bad crossings.

A parade of 5,000 bluejackets which was to have taken place at Devonport was cancelled, owing to the violence of the storm.

The Cunard-White Star liner Queen Mary had a severe buffeting when she arrived at Southampton to-day, reporting several minor injuries.—Reuter Special.

SHIPPING IMPROVES

London, Oct. 26.

A marked improvement in the position of shipping is revealed in the Chamber of Shipping's quarterly return, which shows that on October 1 there were laid up in ports of Great Britain and Ireland 175 vessels, of 402,935 tons net, which is a reduction of 60,284 tons or 13.5 per cent. on the figures for July 1 and a decrease of 109,351 tons or 21.3 per cent. compared with October 1 last year.—British Wireless.

WHERE SMUGGLERS WORK

It is reported that Customs officers in the employ of the Chinese Government fired on a party of smugglers near Shum Chun last night, wounding at least one man, who was found shot through both legs. The illustration shows the Shum Chun River, marking the frontier between the British New Territories and the soil of China, where smugglers are known to operate extensively and where a close watch is kept for them by Chinese Customs officers.

FIGHT NEARS CRISIS

ROOSEVELT PLANS FINAL APPEAL LONDON HEADS FOR N. Y.

New York, Oct. 26.

President F. D. Roosevelt and his rival for office, Governor Alfred Landon, Republican, have commenced the grand finale of their intensive contest and are bidding for large blocks of electoral votes in the eastern United States.

While the President sat in the White House during the week-end preparing his final speeches, which he will deliver in Pennsylvania, New York and near-by states, Governor Landon pursued his coast-to-coast route to New York, via important eastern centres.

The President plans to move northward from Washington tomorrow night in a special train for a speaking tour in New York State, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware, which, together, represent 100 electoral votes.

His attendance at the fiftieth birthday celebrations of New York harbor's famous Statue of Liberty, will open his final tour. This culminates in his major speech to New Yorkers on October 31 at Madison Square Garden.

The President proposes to broadcast this final appeal for votes on the eve of the election.

DOCTOR AT HAND

Meanwhile, Governor Landon, with the doctor still in attendance to care for his throat, continues his campaign journey aboard the "Sunflower Special," just back from California.

A major address at Philadelphia to-night, will be followed by another at Pittsburgh, Pa. before he commences to turn up the entire issues of the final campaign in his final speech in the east, October 29, at Madison Square Garden.

Governor Landon also plans to deliver an appeal by radio on the eve of the election.—Reuter.

LIFEBOAT INSTITUTION

GERMAN ATLANTIC AIRMAIL

SERVICE BEGINS LATE IN 1937 SUCCESSFUL TESTS

Berlin, Oct. 26.

The German Lufthansa Company intends to open a scheduled regular North Atlantic air mail service late in the spring of 1937, states Count Schack, one of the pilots engaged in the trial flights which have just been completed by two flying boats now docked at Travemünde.

Count Schack says the trial flights were made irrespective of weather conditions, and in the daytime the boats flew at a height of only thirty feet above the water, for better navigation. Two pilots took charge alternately.

The scheduled route is from Lisbon via the Azores to New York, and the flying time should not exceed twenty-six hours in calm weather.

A second "mother ship" is now being constructed which will join the Schwabenland in the North Atlantic next year to catapult the flying boats into the air.—Reuter Special.

Increasing Competition From Japan

BRITISH BUSINESS MEN ALARMED

SINGAPORE TO TAKE ACTION?

Singapore, Oct. 26.

The Government is appointing a committee immediately to investigate the growth of Japanese competition in textiles and the rubber and shipping markets, at which British business men are becoming increasingly alarmed.

Introducing the Straits Budget to-day, His Excellency the Governor was questioned as to whether it was possible, under present-day conditions, to maintain the Colony's long-established trade policy.

The Governor replied that the matter was complicated but in his opinion a solution could be found if the business men gave their wholehearted co-operation to the task.—Reuter.

MADRID'S RAIL LINK TO EASTWARD CUT

Burgos, Oct. 26.

An official communique from the insurgents' headquarters here states that the Rightist armies have severed the Madrid rail communications with the east coast, at the Tagus River crossing, and have isolated Aranjuez.

It adds that Rightist artillery, established on the top of a high hill, now dominates Aranjuez station, and that aircraft are bombarding the railroad, the Tagus bridge and the station.—United Press.

ITALO-GERMAN PROTOCOL

FOUNDATION FOR RED MENACE STRESSED

London, Oct. 26.

Reports that an Italo-German protocol has been signed, confirming the status quo in the Western Mediterranean, have been received in diplomatic circles in London. From information obtained from various sources the protocol report, appears well-founded.

The protocol provides, it is understood, that Spanish sovereignty in the Balearic Islands shall be maintained.

Meanwhile, Herr Joachim von Ribbentrop, the new German Ambassador, has arrived in London.

Herr Adolf Hitler is convinced, the new Ambassador said on arrival, that the only real danger for Europe and the British Empire is the spreading of the doctrine of Communism.

He added that close collaboration between British and Germany was a vital necessity in their common struggle to uphold their civilisation.

Arms were raised in the Nazi salute by top-hatted leaders of the German community in London as the Ambassador alighted from the train at Victoria Station.—Reuter.

AIRMEN RETURN TO RACE

DETROYAT LANDS AT BAGHDAD CHALLE STILL AT LYONS

Paris, Oct. 26.

Two of France's most famous airmen, Michel Detroyat and Gaston Durmont, arrived safely at Baghdad to-day and at present lead the participants in the £10,000 round-trip race from Paris to Saigon.

Maurice Arnoux and Andre Japy, two other French long-distance aces, crashed their machine at Karachi while leading the contestants in the long marathon. They were not injured, but their plane is seriously damaged.

Jacques Challe and J. Brille, after two false starts, the first of which took them back to Le Bourget, Paris, and the second of which kept them at Lyons, have decided to recommence the race.—United Press.

CHANGE MINDS

Paris, Oct. 26.

A message has been received from Jacques Challe and J. Brille that, having repaired the trouble with their lubrication system, they have changed their minds and will continue the race. They plan to take off at 7.30 a.m. to-morrow.

They are at present at Lyons, more than a full day behind the leaders, Michel Detroyat and Gaston Durmont.—Reuter.

NO LANDING GEAR

Karachi, Oct. 26.

Arnoux and Japy arrived over the aerodrome here at 6.05 p.m. (G.M.T.) to-day, well ahead of the other competitors in the Paris-Saigon race. But their retractable undercarriage jammed as they were about to come to a landing.

They circled the field for 35 minutes and exhausted their petrol before making a landing in which they knew they must crash.

Arnoux, at the controls, made a remarkably skilful landing, but unfortunately damaged the left wing of his machine, and repairs cannot be effected locally. The flight has therefore been abandoned and the occupants of the racing plane are returning to France by the Royal Dutch mail plane.—Reuter Bulletin Service.

LEAVE BAGHDAD

Baghdad, Oct. 26.

Detroyat and Durmont, now far ahead of the only other competing plane in the Paris-Saigon marathon, hopped off at 1.20 p.m. after arriving at 12.40 p.m.—Reuter Bulletin Service.

THIS is a SEASON of GAY ACCESSORIES

says VICTORIA CHAPPELLE

LOOK out for new and amusing accessories this winter. They'll give your outfit an individual and striking note. Or invent them yourself. It's not so difficult as it sounds.

Here are a few suggestions sketched by Ettinger which will give you ideas.

Just below is a leather bracelet into which is tucked a lip-stick.

Below that is a three-stranded fur collar for which a georgette backing might be used.

It is fastened with outsize decorative hooks and eyes—a sample of which you see sketched above it.

HOW do you like the spray of flowers at the throat of the high-necked frock on the immediate right? These should be as flat as possible, because you want a matching spray to pin or stitch on to the back of each of your gloves; or, not to overdo the thing, why not the left glove only?

A SQUARE of the thinnest velvet is what you tuck into the breast-pocket of bring the neckline and pocket of your dress this year—as a hand-up to date, edge them with kerchief. And if you want to velvet also.

THE thinnest velvet square tucked into a breast pocket; gloves slit up the back instead of the front; flower heads slotted through a belt—these are just a few of the amusing ideas suggested by Victoria Chappelle to lend gaiety and chic to your autumn ensemble.

YOUR belt? Make it of practical for day-time, but for felt or suede and cut the evening it would take all the slots in it. Through these pull little odds-and-ends which usually four or five little felt flowers, ruin an evening bag. And button it at the side. See sketch on left.

POCKETS are the answer to despairing inquiries. The handbag below the belt as to how to brighten a dull would be, perhaps, a little in-day frock—pockets in black velvet or thin black suede. One should be placed well below your shoulder and the other in front of your hip; both could have flaps and, if you like, an inverted plent in the centre.

On the plainest of your wool dresses (or on a jacket which fastens up to the throat) you could wear a collar made like the one in the centre of the sketch, with a narrow fur border and tied together at the throat.

The gloves shown are the newest kind, which open at the back instead of in the palm. Like the collar, they have a fur edging and the same kind of tie-ups.

APPLE HARVEST

IT is such a good year for apples that housewives are wondering what to do with the tremendous amount of fruit they are gathering from their trees at present. Windfalls are in profusion, and there are plenty of ways of using these so that they are turned into profitable stores for the winter months.

Apple Jelly is a great favourite, and keeps extremely well. If it is put into small moulds, it makes a good standby for the sweet course, as the little jellies can be turned out at a moment's notice, surrounded with sliced bananas and topped with cream.

Cut the apples into quarters without removing the peel, but taking out the cores and any unsound parts if you are using windfalls. Put into a preserving pan with cold water to come about half way up the fruit, and cook until quite soft.

Put the pulp into a jelly bag suspended over a bowl and leave to drain all night. Do not attempt to squeeze, or the clearness of the jelly will be spoilt.

Measure the juice, return to the pan and heat. Add a lemon to each pint of juice, bring to the boil, then boil fast until a little sets when tested on a saucer. Put into small glass jars or moulds, cover, and do not disturb until the preserve is set. Then store in a cool, dry place.

By Doris KNIGHT

is another favourite which is quite simple to make. Peel, core and quarter the apples, put into the preserving pan, barely cover with cold water and simmer until a pulp. Put through a sieve, return to the pan with $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. of preserving sugar and a $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoonful of ground ginger to each pint of pulp. Boil, stirring nearly all the time to prevent burning, until it sets when tested. Put into jars and cover.

Golden Sultana Tart is an interesting way of using apples on the menu. Line a large tart plate with short crust pastry, and strew a layer of cleaned sultanas over the bottom. Sweeten apple pulp with golden syrup, mix in a well-beaten egg, and fill the tart with this mixture. Cover with strips of pastry arranged in lattice pattern, brush over with beaten egg, and bake until browned.

Apple Trifle makes quite a gala sweet if plenty of coarsely chopped blanched almonds are mixed in with the sweetened apple puree as well as some chopped crystallised fruits.

Put a layer of sponge cake moistened with sherry at the bottom of a glass bowl, add a good layer of the apple mixture, cover with custard, then decorate the top with crystallised fruits and whipped cream piped on in fancy design.

WHY BLONDES GO GREEN WITH ENVY

And Brunettes Are Soulful While Redheads Are Fiery

BACK TO U.S.

Dot Kilgallen, the American flying reporter, has completed her flight around the world.

Radio Priest Defies Vatican

SLASHING ATTACK ON U.S. PRESIDENT

New York, Oct. 15. The comparative calmness which has marked Father Coughlin's political speeches following reports of Vatican displeasure at his tactics disappeared at Cincinnati last night. There he called President Roosevelt "anti-God and Radical," and assured his hearers: "When any upstart dictator in the United States succeeds in making in this nation a one-party form of Government and the ballot becomes useless, I will have the courage to stand up and advocate the use of bullets."

Father Coughlin warned his hearers that unless the present trend was stopped the 1940 election might be the last under a democratic form of government here. "The Red flag," he shouted, "has been uplifted in America, and we must stop, look and listen lest disaster confront us. . . . It is Roosevelt, the incompetent President, we must remove from office if we are to save America for the people. He knows how to save it for the Democratic Party, but hasn't the intestinal fortitude to tell the Communists that their lousy criminal votes are not acceptable to him."

Father Coughlin called Governor London an "honest, God-fearing man," but "so old-fashioned that he wants us to return to the gold standard, which more than anything else got us into the World War." He attacked the President's programme of planned economy, saying "the Bible commands 'increase and multiply,' but Roosevelt says 'Destroy and devastate,' and therefore I call him anti-God and Radical."

COLOUR AFFECTS TEMPER

DARK PEOPLE ARE HEALTHIER

MANY people believe that there is no greater difference between blonde, brunette and red-haired women than between three motor-cars of the same model painted in different colours.

Scientists have discovered that that view is all wrong.

The three types are as distinct from each other as three human races; and there is ample evidence that they may have been distinct races before humanity became so thoroughly mixed up by emigration and intermarriage.

Here are some of the striking differences between the three types of women:

A blonde averages 150,000 separate hairs on her head.

A brunette has between 80,000 and 130,000.

A redhead may have as few as 25,000.

This is because red hair is coarser than blonde or brunette.

If a red-haired woman grew 150,000 hairs her scalp would have to be six times larger than that of the average woman.

Rainbow Colours

Blondes' skins are not really white, nor are brunettes' skins really brown.

They each contain large quantities of red, orange, yellow, green, blue, indigo and violet.

A blonde has more yellow in her skin than a brunette.

A brunette has less green or green blue than a blonde.

Redheads have a more equal blending of all the colours.

A blonde can really turn green when the blood leaves her cheeks as a result of a sudden shock or nausea, because the extra green pigment in her skin then becomes more prominent.

Martyrs To Cold

Blondes and redheads are very susceptible to skin affections. A real brunette is practically immune.

Brunettes seldom suffer from infantile paralysis and diseases of the nervous system.

Blondes are martyrs to the common cold, influenza, and diseases of the lungs.

Brunettes usually have the best teeth.

Blondes and redheads are often victims of rheumatism and rheumatic fever.

The skin of most blondes will not tan even after long exposure to sunlight. It merely becomes red—and sunburned over and over again.

The skins of brunettes have the power to make a dark pigment which absorbs and neutralises the dangerous rays of sunlight.

Rage And Grief

There is also a great mental as well as a physical difference between the three types.

Blondes give way to excesses of rage and grief. They are more likely to kill those who have thwarted them than the other types.

Brunettes are sadder and more soulful. They are more likely to commit suicide than to use physical violence towards others.

Blondes are cold, unemotional and calculating.

Brunettes are excitable, generous and often sad.

Redheads are fiery and easily angered, but their anger soon cools down and they seldom nurse resentment.

Golden Tints

Why some women have flaming red hair is a mystery.

The red colour is not due to the same type of pigment as that which gives the distinctive colour to brunettes, and the absence of which is the cause of the golden tints of the blonde.

It is believed to be due to the way in which light is reflected from the thicker hair of the redheads.

Red hair is almost transparent, which explains why, in intense sunshine, the heads of women with this type of hair sometimes resemble a gorgeous sunrise.

Once A Brunette . . .

There are few perfect redheads and only one perfect blonde for every 100 brunettes.

And as a result of heredity all the types blend in the utmost confusion.

But here is one thing that science is confident about:—

A brunette remains a brunette no matter how much she bleaches; and a blonde is still a blonde in spite of gallons of darkening dyes.

Their blood, their nerves and their minds cannot be changed by the hairdresser.

Blondeness and brunetness are only the outward signs of the mystery of personality, which lies far deeper than the skin.

Tail Lights For Sheep

Sheep roving the western plains of Queensland may soon carry a "tail light" as protection against the dingo, or Australian wild dog; the depredations of which in some districts among stock are considerable.

The "light" is the invention of Francis Carley, a railway worker. It is in the shape of a metal disc, in the centre of which is a bicycle reflector or "cat's eye," says Austral News.

The edges are painted with phosphorous and give the effect of a ring of fire. The disc is attached to the sheep's wool by a strong clip.

Stalin Reinstates Fairies

THE Soviet Government has decided to reintroduce fairies, after having officially abolished them. Now they are to be officially recognised and subsidised with Government money.

Stalin has ordered a grant of 2,500,000 roubles to be made for the building of a Children's House in Moscow, which will be a huge toy emporium.

Leading Soviet artists and sculptors have been commissioned to produce statues of fairy-tale characters and to paint friezes telling the old Russian fairy stories.

An electrical impulse released by President Roosevelt at the opposite side of the continent sent 3,000,000 cubic feet of water a minute tumbling through the 12 outlets at the Boulder Dam and put the mighty Colorado River to work. MYSTERY WOMAN ARRIVES IN LONDON

On "Secret" Mission WIDOW OF RABID GREEK ANTI-ROYALIST

London, Oct. 18. MME. HELENA VENISELOS, enigmatic, 63-year-old widow, whose back-acting role in Greek politics has made her the "mystery" woman of the Balkans, has arrived in London on a mission which she described to me yesterday as "official" and "secret."

Staying quietly at Grosvenor House, Park Lane, Mme. Veniseleos looks back on a turbulent career, utterly incongruous with her fragile womanliness, soft-lined features, generous smile.

On her last visit to London, in 1934, she was shadowed by four guards with automatic pistols. Husband Eleutherios Veniseleos, Greek statesman, ex-Prime Minister, rabid anti-Royalist, was ill at the time, sought recovery in England.

Yesterday Mme. Veniseleos was dressed simply in black. The night before she dined in a black evening dress. She mourns her husband, Eleutherios Veniseleos died last March.

"Are you back in politics again?" I asked.

"Who knows?" was Madame's enigmatic answer.

"Why have you come to London?" "My mission is official. You will know later. For the present it is secret."

"Are you attached to the Government in Athens?" "I do not know."

Assassination Bid

Mme. Veniseleos covered herself again in mystery. The same mystery that surrounded the attempted assassination in 1933, when four bullets in a rain of 200 wounded her as she fled through Athens—in a car—with her husband. Same mystery that belated her financial support of abortive Veniseleos revolution in 1935.

Money has been one mainspring of her power. London-born daughter of John Stefanovitch Schilke, wealthy merchant, Mme. Veniseleos inherited and amassed a fortune estimated at £2,000,000.

As a young woman in Bayswater, she fell into fanatical admiration for the Greek statesman whom she married in 1921. She bought him a home in Greece, founded a maternity hospital in Athens, gave Greece a London Legation in Upper Grosvenor Street.

Her fiery support of the Veniseleos cause emblazoned her name in Greek politics: to Royalists, a menace—to Republicans, a heroine.

Now she returns to London—quiet, mourning, widowed. But still mysterious.

BRITISH MOTOR EXPANSION BIG ORDERS PLACED AT OLYMPIA

London, Oct. 26.
It is estimated that the motor industry placed with British motor manufacturers during the ten days of the motor show at Olympia reached an aggregate value of £2,000,000, or £22,000,000 more than at last year's show.
The importance of the expansion of the motor industry in its effect on national prosperity is shown by a comparison of the Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders' last year's motor industry sales of 633,000 tons of iron and steel, 8,000,000 square feet of glass, 2,000,000 gallons of paint, and 1,000,000,000 bolts of timber, while it is estimated that 1,200,000 persons were employed in the manufacture, sale, repair and operation of motor vehicles.—British Wireless.

TRUCE ARRANGED IN JARROW MUNICIPAL ELECTION AGREEMENT

London, Oct. 26.
In connection with the murder of 209 unemployed men at Jarrow, the distressed Tyneside district, to present a petition to the House of Commons, which had the support of the three chief political parties in the area, a truce has been arranged between the municipal elections which take place on over the country on November 2.
Only the retiring councillors have been nominated at Jarrow, by agreement between the three parties, and as a demonstration of a united community behind the appeal for special measures in view of the future of returning general prosperity to reach the derelict town.—British Wireless.

The United States Ambassador, Mr. Nelson Johnson, and the First Secretary, Mr. Merrell, greeted the party and whisked them off to the Embassy, where the Ambassador entertained them to a turkey dinner.—United Press.

FORTHCOMING TALK ENGLISH ASSOCIATION'S ACTIVITIES

On Tuesday next, November 3, the Hongkong Branch of the English Association will begin its activities for the Session 1936-7, when Mr. P. H. Leung, B.A., will speak on "Basic English versus Pidgin English."

The English Association is a world-wide Society and its object is to arrange meetings of people interested in English literature and the English language. It has members of every nationality, race, and creed, who find a common interest in the study and discussion of literary topics or linguistic problems. The headquarters of the central body is in London, and there are local branches in every city of culture throughout the English-speaking world. The Hongkong Branch is now beginning its eighth year. Its meetings are held on the first Tuesday of every month from November to April, and take the form of a short address followed by an informal open discussion.

Many members of the local branch have also become members of the central body, and are kept in touch with literary activities at home through the pamphlets and bulletins which are published by the English Association during the year. For this central membership there is an extra charge of five dollars in addition to the local subscription of three dollars.

The Helena May Institute, where the meetings are held, kindly offers to cater for tea-parties in the lecture hall. Those who mean to have tea are asked to order it the day before the meeting from the Matron of the Institute, (Tel. 22160) so that a table may be arranged for them.

Membership is open to all who are interested, and there are no formalities to be gone through, other than the handing in of names and subscriptions, which can be done most conveniently at the meetings.

Reasons why 'MANSION' is so economical

'Mansion' being a highly concentrated wax polish, only very little is needed to give a mirror-like brilliance, to a large floor surface.
'Mansion', the preservative polish, lengthens the life of Linoleums.
Because 'Mansion' gives such a lasting brilliance, floors need less frequent polishing.

PRESERVATION OF BRITISH IDEALS

With the almost daily clash of divergent political ideas creating ill-feeling in Europe, a very pertinent question for Britons is whether the reasonable measure of freedom won by centuries of effort is to be permitted to slip into disrepute, or whether it shall become the corner-stone of British national life. A well-known educationist has been giving this matter considered attention by the process of examining certain prominent national characteristics of the British people. Going back over history, he has found evidence of the individualism of the race, the intensely practical nature of the people, and their genuine aversion from being dragged or submerged by some great idea. A point arises, of course, whether it is possible to re-mould national character. At first glance, this might seem almost impossible, but since the Great War there have been outstanding examples in Europe of mass suggestion being used in a manner which would have been unthinkable in earlier years. Another point which has been raised is whether, if we had lost the war, we should have adopted a form of government similar to that of Germany to-day. The authority to whom we have referred hazards the view that out national characteristics are such that we would never willingly bow the knee to dictators, of whatever school of political thought they might be. At the same time, it cannot be overlooked that the allurements of Fascism to some minds and of Communism to others do illustrate the danger of taking democracy for granted. Nothing that is worth while in national life can be perpetuated except by effort. A need therefore arises to harness the idealism of youth and to indicate in no uncertain manner to the rising generation the value of a true democracy at a time when liberal ideals are being widely challenged. If that work is ignored, the time might easily come when the pent-up idealism of youth would be let loose in other directions. The points which need constant stressing are that the main consideration underlying representative rule in Britain is to make laws which are not repugnant to the citizens, but which are such as to bring forth a ready response from the people as a whole.

SIR F. GOWLAND HOPKINS (English), pioneer of the Science of Nutrition.

DR. FRIEDRICH BERGIUS (German), whose researches led to the production of oil from coal.

MME. CURIE JOLIOT (French), who discovered artificial radium and a new type of X-ray.

DR. WILLIAM MURPHY (American), a front-rank fighter against pernicious anemia.

PROFESSOR EINSTEIN (German), in spite of his exile to the world, called by the Nazis.

Here are five scientists who have contributed to the wisdom of all nations:

THE time has come to have a Science League of Nations. Indeed, it is overdue. A few years ago, one might have urged it as an altruistic measure to help humanity. To-day the scientists must have a world organisation in self defence. Make no mistake about it—Science, the intellectual democracy, is in as great danger as social democracy. And this danger is not far off. During the last few weeks I have taken part in private discussions with eminent international scientists on this question of world organisation. They take the gravest possible view of the situation. They see scientists being recruited in the name of "Nationalism"; they are being turned into the well-drilled soldiers of totalitarian states.

Mussolini has made Italian scientists take an oath of loyalty so that any discovery, which might help the rest of the world, becomes an official secret and its disclosure high treason. Hitler has created a "Nordic Science" and has Nazified discovery. "Nationalism is the contradiction of Science," declared Professor American Association, discussing the international project with me. "Science means, essentially, the discovery of knowledge for the benefit of humanity in general. It depends, entirely, on freedom of expression, freedom of exchange of ideas, and freedom of results. Destroy that, and it is the end of Science." "You know, professor," said a friend of mine to one of the most eminent German scientists recently, "I refuse to accept any scientific announcement from Germany nowadays. I do not believe your scientific journals." "Neither do we," said the German bluntly. "What a travesty! Even in international conference."

Dictators—Hands Off Science!

Science came pronouncedly of social affairs which were like amazing windows and letting cold draughts of reality into the close-cloistered, science-fogged laboratories in which, in the past, scientists secluded themselves like hermits.

Four years ago some of us, both inside and outside Science, argued that Science, through the B.A., should apply itself to social problems. We were told it was "not the scientist's job." Now they have discovered that it is. And they have "got down to it."

At the same time, we argued that there must be a Science League of Nations. We were told that Science, with its articles of world faith, needed no organisation.

In American State universities, scientific views or discoveries which somebody thinks are "subversive" have led to dismissal. And, don't let's fool ourselves. It can happen here too, where research depends so largely on "tid" subsidies.

Something, however, has happened which has given scientists fresh courage. The British Association, after four years' pressure, both from within and without, has taken its stand. It has turned the attention of Science to social problems. It has realised that Science may help to create social problems, social influences can also make their impact felt upon Science.

The American, German and other visiting scientists were tremendously impressed by the outspokenness of the British scientists. From every branch of Science came pronouncedly of social affairs which were like amazing windows and letting cold draughts of reality into the close-cloistered, science-fogged laboratories in which, in the past, scientists secluded themselves like hermits.

Four years ago some of us, both inside and outside Science, argued that Science, through the B.A., should apply itself to social problems. We were told it was "not the scientist's job." Now they have discovered that it is. And they have "got down to it."

At the same time, we argued that there must be a Science League of Nations. We were told that Science, with its articles of world faith, needed no organisation.

There exists, vaguely, an International Academy of Sciences. It is true to its name, "academic." Before the war it had some influence, but it "outlived" German scientists during the war and crippled its purpose. The object of the new association would be not to turn scientists out but to bring scientists in.

The proposed International Association could not do better than to adopt as the basis of its constitution, the spirit of the British Association charter:—

"To give a stronger impulse and more systematic direction to scientific inquiry; to promote intercourse of those who cultivate Science in different parts of the Empire, with one another and with foreign philosophers; to obtain more general attention to the objects of Science and the removal of any disadvantages of a public kind which impede its progress."

That last part, so long obscured by scientific ebb and the dry dust of the laboratories, is the key to the new outlook of Science. It does not mean just "bringing the Man-in-the-Moon down to the Man-in-the-Street," just giving popular or semi-popular lectures; it means bringing scientific progress into line with social affairs.

The International association, therefore, would be concerned, not with sectional discussions, but with aligning Science with world problems. And, so important to-day, safeguarding the interests of scientists as individuals, and of Science as a democratic institution.

It would have a non-exclusive constitution. Anyone who would subscribe to its constitution, to the basic principles of Science, and its code of international freedom, should be admitted.

Let me give one ready-made example of the kind of work it would promote and advance. There is in existence an excellent League of Nations Technical Committee on Nutrition. It is carrying out a world-wide survey of the food which is needed by people throughout the world in order to maintain health, and comparing it with the food available and contrasting it with the food which, owing to economic conditions, is consumed.

The nutrition scientists can measure the requirements and the agricultural scientists can measure the resources, and the economists can show the shortcomings. That committee may be the foundation of a new world economic order based upon the free distribution of the primary necessities of life-food.

Professor Contin, as President of the American Association, proposes as a start a union between the scientists of the English-speaking world. As a nucleus, that is admirable, and since Sir Josiah Stamp, President of the British Association, is almost as well known in America as he is here, he could crown his term of office by helping to promote it.

But, with Mme. Curie-Joliot, famous daughter of famous parents, as Under-Secretary for Scientific Research in France, French co-operation should be easily obtained. Sweden, Denmark, Norway, Holland, Belgium and Russia, and many other countries would, I am positive, subscribe to the objects and accept the scientific ideal.

What is needed immediately is a "Magna Charta of Science" reaffirming the basic principles, stating the democratic creed, renouncing the abuses of science and invention as destructive forces, and reconsecrating Science to the service and advancement of humanity and of civilisation.

Science, The Destroyer

By "AN OLD STAGER"

CHINA'S War Lords. It is to be feared, have been given a new toy to play with in the Canton-Hankow Railway, the new line which forms the final connecting link in railway communications between Canton and Hankow.

Hitherto the railway development of China, so much encouraged by foreign enterprise and capital, has served less as a means of exploiting the vast industrial resources of the country than it has to enable the militarists to plan and effect bigger, brighter, and bloodier campaigns of civil war.

The advantages of the railway for the rapid transport of armed troops was immediately seized upon by the rival generals, and in many cases the finest locomotives and rolling stock of European and American production were mobilised for military purposes and were immediately upon disembarkation on Chinese soil.

This is, of course, all most highly reprehensible, and it has been the cause of ceaseless but unavailing protest on the part of the Powers whose national interests have been disregarded.

From the humanitarian point of view the offence is the more heinous in that the Chinese generals have less liking for straightforward battle between their opposing troops than they have for attacking a march upon each other by unexpectedly letting loose upon a rival's territory to plunder, pillage, and destroy the unhappy civil community.

EUROPE'S BAD EXAMPLE
The new length of railway, running as it does through some of the most mountainous and hitherto impassable regions and crossing the whole length of China's most militantly intractable province, Hunan, may well be feared to serve as an incentive to fresh horrors for her people rather than as an instrument to establish their industrial prosperity.

Some evil genius in mankind seems to turn every one of his inventions to purposes of bloodshed. With the first clumsy visions of flight through the air came the thought of the splendid means afforded by a flying machine for raining down destruction upon an enemy.

In the light of our present knowledge of aerodynamics it seems a wild stretch of imagination to have thought for a moment that a balloon filled merely with hot air could ever be made to support the heavy weight of weapons of offence. Yet it is clear from contemporary records that some such thought must have been entertained by the Montgolfiers and other French pioneers of aerodynamics.

The aerobatics of 150 years ago were baneful of the deeds they would do once they succeeded in lifting themselves from off the earth. Indeed, it was the rumours of what the Montgolfiers were preparing to do in the Channel that first awoke the minds of British people that unpleasant sensation, now familiar to all, of insecurity against aggression from the air.

Such fears, entertained only by the more timid and credulous, were ridiculed, as were also the claims of the French inventors. A caricature, published in London in 1784, pictures Montgolfier blowing soap-bubbles and declaiming to himself, "O by Gar, dis be de grand invention. Dis will immortalise my King, my country, and myself. We will decimate the greatest our enemies, we will make de English quake, by Gar. We will inspect their camp, we will intercept their Fleet, and we will set fire to their dockyards, and, by Gar, we will take Gibraltar in de air-balloon, and when we have conquered de English, we conquer de other countries, and make them all colonies to de Grand Monarque."

That artist might have curbed his latest and most powerful types of

Yet it is clear from contemporary records that some such thought must have been entertained by the Montgolfiers and other French pioneers of aerodynamics.

The aerobatics of 150 years ago were baneful of the deeds they would do once they succeeded in lifting themselves from off the earth. Indeed, it was the rumours of what the Montgolfiers were preparing to do in the Channel that first awoke the minds of British people that unpleasant sensation, now familiar to all, of insecurity against aggression from the air.

Such fears, entertained only by the more timid and credulous, were ridiculed, as were also the claims of the French inventors. A caricature, published in London in 1784, pictures Montgolfier blowing soap-bubbles and declaiming to himself, "O by Gar, dis be de grand invention. Dis will immortalise my King, my country, and myself. We will decimate the greatest our enemies, we will make de English quake, by Gar. We will inspect their camp, we will intercept their Fleet, and we will set fire to their dockyards, and, by Gar, we will take Gibraltar in de air-balloon, and when we have conquered de English, we conquer de other countries, and make them all colonies to de Grand Monarque."

BIGGER GUNS FOR BATTLESHIPS

Britain to Match Other Navies JAPAN'S SECRET PLANS

By A Naval Correspondent

Great Britain is determined to match any increase in gun calibre contemplated by foreign navies. If battleships mounting 16-inch guns are planned abroad Great Britain will build ships mounting 16-inch guns. If 18-inch or even larger guns make their appearance in foreign navies Great Britain will match their construction.

There is to be no question of accepting any ship-for-ship inferiority in future naval construction. It is even possible that, if other nations endeavour to effect increases in gun calibre, Great Britain may consider building ships with armament so powerful that it could not be exceeded.

This does not mean that the two battleships to be laid down early in the New Year are to mount guns of very large calibre. As has been stated in the Morning Post, these ships are to mount 14-inch guns. Owing to the speed at which preliminary work on these ships has been pushed forward, Great Britain is now committed to the 14-inch gun for these two ships.

14 INCH GUN CLAUSE
It is held that these two ships are required primarily to offset capital ship construction in Europe—notably the 20,000-ton German battleships—and that the 14-inch gun therefore does not represent an inferiority, even if Japan and the United States build ships mounting bigger guns.

Under the terms of the London Naval Treaty of last March—which has so far been ratified only by the United States—the gun calibre of capital ships is limited to 14 inches if Japan agrees to the limitation before April 1 next year.

Some months ago Japan was asked whether she would subscribe to the Treaty, and her answer was "No." This was taken by the United States to mean that Japan had no intention of adhering to the limit of 14 inches for the gun calibre of future capital ships, and the United States has made plans for the laying down of two battleships mounting 16-inch guns early next year.

There have been rumours that Japan is contemplating the construction of capital ships of very large size and mounting guns of 18-inch calibre.

Japan is observing the closest secrecy about her naval plans, but if these rumours prove to be facts it would seem that Japan is bent upon following the strategy of Lord Fisher in building ships which will call for "replies" so large that they cannot pass through the strategic canal of the potential enemy—in this case the Panama Canal.

So far as Great Britain is concerned, the adoption of such a policy would lead to the mounting in British battleships of guns as powerful as, if not more powerful than, any mounted in foreign capital ships.

FUTURE TONNAGE LIMIT
Under modern conditions aircraft spotting has gone far towards eliminating the effect of maximum visibility upon effective range. It is widely acknowledged that the ability to hit with heavy metal at long range is all-important in naval warfare. These factors are largely dependent upon the calibre of the gun.

But if the maximum gun calibre for battleships of the future increases, the size of the ships must also increase in order to enable sufficient armour and steaming qualities to be incorporated. Thus the tonnage limit of 35,000 tons laid down in the naval Treaty will become inoperative.

The elimination of the Treaty limits for gun power and tonnage in future battleships will not entail the breaking of the Treaty by any Power, for Japan and Italy have not signed, and the adherence of signatory Powers is so governed by safeguarding clauses that action by any of the non-signatory Powers will lead to

SECRET RETREAT NEAR MOSCOW

WARSAW, Oct. 15.
JOSEF STALIN, mighty Red Dictator of Soviet Russia, is lying seriously ill in a secret retreat near Moscow.

He is suffering from angina pectoris, a disease of the heart.

He has suffered from this complaint for several years, but the excitement of the last months caused by his purge of Trotskyist opposition has made it worse.

The serious state of Stalin's health has been responsible for the fact that he has not spoken in public for months, and has been absent from all important parades.

Recently he went to Tiflis, Georgia, where fifty-seven years ago he was born the son of a cobbler. But he went up the mountains and this affected his heart.

He was rushed back to Moscow.

INJECTIONS

Professor Pletney and other doctors are in constant attendance. They have already given several injections.

Stalin has had several heart attacks and sudden attacks of angina.

Professor Pletney has "dictated" to the U.S.S.R. ruler that he should rest for an unlimited period.

Although his condition is not critical it can become so at any moment. Sudden excitement and he can die on the spot. On the other hand he may live for years.

His illness has caused a special meeting of the Council of People's Commissars to decide his successor. Stalin's wish, it is believed, is that he should be followed not by one man but by a triumvirate.

This would be formed by Soviet war lord Voroshilov, Commissar for Heavy Industry Orjonikidze, and Stalin's father-in-law, and Commissar for Transport Kaganovich. In Moscow, it is referred to by the Muscovites as "mixed sweets" because the first is a Russian, the second a Georgian, and the third a Jew.

In California, where striped bass derbies are serious business and participated in by some 50,000 anglers, fishing isn't restricted to the men folks. At Rio Vista, where the angling derby originated four years ago, we find Geraldine Brown all primed with her entry for this year's affair.

SHOULD THIS BABY BE KEPT ALIVE?

The Problem

A week-old baby boy was found to be suffering from a rare internal disorder.

Doctors said: "If we operate we might keep him alive, but he would be a hopeless invalid, mentally and physically."

His mother said: "I'm his mother. I want him. He mustn't be allowed to die."

His father said: "I think it unfair to operate. He'd hate us for giving him that horrible chance."

KEY TO SUCCESSFUL MARRIAGES IS SOUGHT BY PSYCHOLOGIST IN 7-YEAR STUDY OF 500 COUPLES

Storrs, Conn., Oct. 20.

A seven years' experiment to reveal what combinations of married couples get along best together—or worse—has been undertaken by Dr. E. Lowell Kelly, assistant professor of psychology at Connecticut State College.

About a year ago, Dr. Kelly and his wife, an assistant, appealed to 500 engaged couples to submit to tests for the seven years' period. To-day, he has about 200 couples on file, and has issued an appeal for 300 more.

When a couple agree to take the tests, they either visit Dr. Kelly at the college or are visited by the professor. "I see all of them personally," Dr. Kelly says.

THOUSAND ANSWERS SOUGHT
One thousand different items of information are sought by the professor and his wife. What are their likes and dislikes, their personalities, are they introverted or extroverted, their backgrounds, money available, colour of hair, eyes, their height and breadth? He also gives them psychological and intelligence tests.

And this goes on through the years. At the end of the seven years' period, Dr. Kelly said, he will ask each couple to submit to another thorough examination.

Two principal questions Dr. Kelly hopes to have answered by these tests are:

1. How do persons pair off?
2. Which combinations have the most success in marriage?

In other words, as Dr. Kelly says, will a blonde be happy with a blonde, an introvert with an extrovert, a tall one with a small one, a thin one with a wide one, and vice versa?

NO CONCLUSIONS YET
Are there any conclusions to date?

"No," said Dr. Kelly, "I have no preconception as to what combinations of personality lead to marital success. I am collecting information and expect to watch how the marriages come out."

Dr. Kelly received his bachelor of science degree from Purdue University in 1920 and then taught in high school in New Mexico. He was awarded his Master's degree in 1928 from Colorado State Teachers' College, and then joined the department of psychology at Stanford University. He received his Ph.D. from Stanford in 1930.

He taught at the University of Hawaii for a year and then studied in Germany and Austria as a Social Science Research Council Fellow. He came to Connecticut State in the fall of 1933.

Dr. Kelly has been married 10 years. He has no children.—United Press.

A London staff reporter in New York, cabling this problem story gave these further details:

The parents who battled against each other for their baby's sake—were Mr. and Mrs. Julian Tafel, of Chicago.

The baby, only a few ounces short of nine pounds, is in Chicago's Danish-American Hospital.

Dr. Eastman, who brought him into the world, told the parents: "I think he should be kept alive; that's my personal as well as my professional feeling, but I cannot operate without your consent."

Dr. Eastman, after consulting lawyers, settled the argument by performing the operation that may save the baby's life.

"Keys" Like

Postage Stamps AND TYRES THAT SQUEAK WHEN PUNCTURED

Burglars, motorists' and mathematicians were among those specially interested in the Twelfth International Exhibition of Inventions which opened at the Central Hall, Westminster recently.

For the former the exhibition was a humiliating experience, since among the many inventions on view were three "keys," thin and flexible as cardboards, for use with a lock claimed to be unbreakable.

"I have spent some years perfecting them," the inventor, Mr. Buchanan Wollaston, of Ipswich, said.

Unlocking a ponderous demonstration door with a "key" which looked like a postage stamp, Mr. Wollaston continued: "I claim that one can carry dozens of these keys about in the space that one of the present type would take up; that one can get fresh ones made in a few minutes; and that the arrangement of any lock can be altered several times."

For the motorists there was an attachment which will make tyres squeak obligingly when they are punctured, while mathematicians will be intrigued by an offer of £20,000 if they can solve a newly invented code.

There were toothbrushes that disinfect themselves; electric torches fitted with a rear lamp for pedestrians to carry; and electrically driven hedge-cutters. And among the inventions was an auctioneer, a schoolmaster, an architect, a butcher, and a clergyman.

Lord Asquith, President of the Institute of Patentees, opened the Exhibition.

PERRY SAID NOT TO BE COMING TO HONGKONG

London Newspaper Reports Far East Tour Abandoned

NOT GOING TO AUSTRALIA MAY TAKE UP GOLF SERIOUSLY

NO CONFIRMATION AVAILABLE IN HONGKONG

TWO pieces of vitally interesting tennis news reached Hongkong yesterday. The first made our L.T.A. officials beam with satisfaction: the second, though they know nothing about it yet, will probably make them frown in disappointment. Deal-ways (or even America's fairways). So far as serious golf is concerned, I think he will be completely bunkered, symmetrical and right in the rough.

I Hope He's Wrong

BUT all this isn't going to make Hongkong's L.T.A. officials frown. It's the second part of the first paragraph of these comments which will cause the trouble. Just as we (not to mention Gordon Lum) had made up our minds that we were to feast our eyes on the world's champion, comes this news that he is going to give us the miss in bank. If true, it is very regrettable and a real blow to Hongkong. In fact it means a great disappointment to the Far East in general. This is one of the few occasions when I, as a newspaperman, hope that Trevor Wignall, as a newspaperman, is profoundly wrong. Fortunately the general public is not likely to be bothered by either.

Beams Of Satisfaction

NOW for the beams of satisfaction. Tilden has said "Yes" to everything the Hongkong L.T.A. has proposed concerning the visit here of himself and Vines. And for this Mr. D. S. Green deserves a word of commendation. For he wrote a very charming letter to Tilden when the player first indicated that he was not keen on a social programme being arranged: the upshot is Tilden's cable published yesterday in the Telegraph. The only disconcerting point is that Miss Jane Sharp has fallen ill and must return to the United States. This really affects Shanghai more than it does Hongkong, for Cannavaro has fixed up a programme which includes a singles between Tilden and Vines to figure in singles, and to play doubles with some of the expert Shanghai markers. But Hongkong, being without professional players or markers of outstanding ability could only introduce Miss Sharp into the programme by pitting her against the male mamestros on a handicap basis, a type of match which might or might not appeal to the public.

Three-Match Contest

AS it is Hongkong is to have four chances of seeing two of the greatest players the world has ever known in action against each other. For this privilege people in America have paid upwards of ten gold dollars, while here you can see them on the first day for one dollar and on the other three days at $3.50 a go. The best of three-sets match on Monday will be a perfect certain raiser for the best of five sets on Tuesday. It is counter to follow the opportunity will give the players the opportunity of getting acquainted with the court, the strangeness of Hongkong's sunlight (it is strange after (Continued on Page 9.)

Clubhouse Chatter By "Veritas"

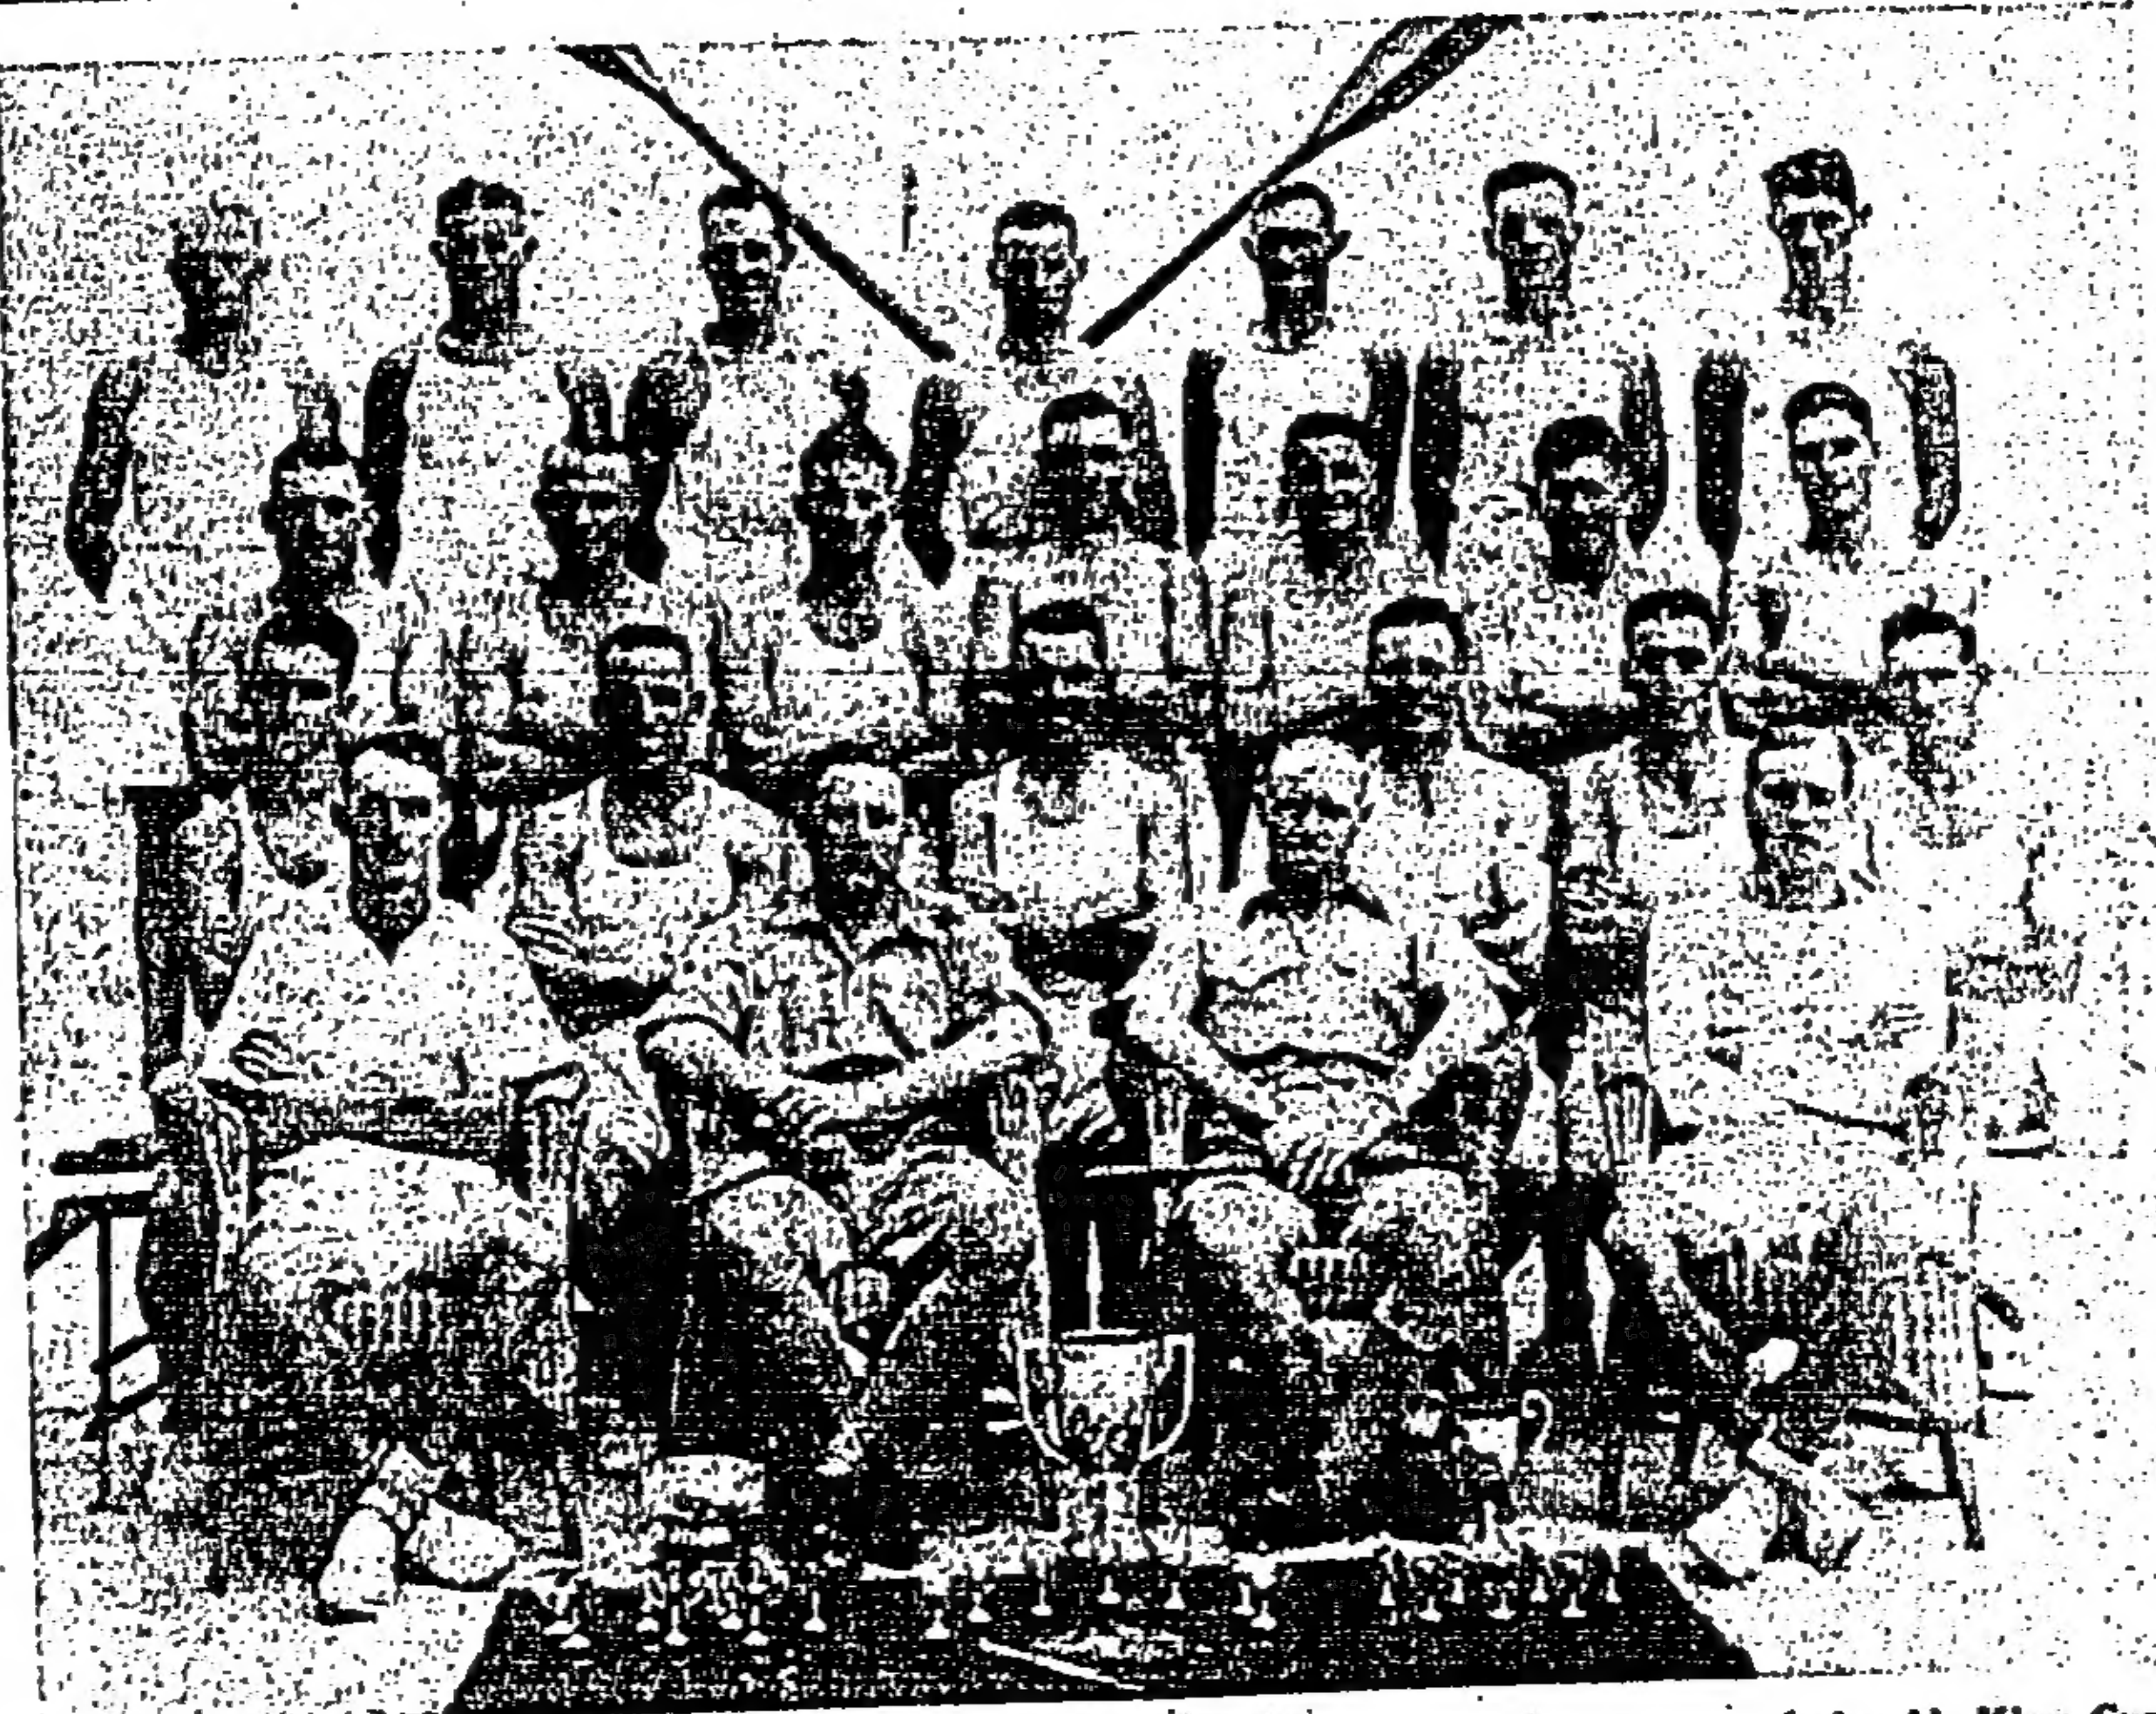

ing first with the frowns. Trevor Wignall, famous sports columnist of the London Daily Express categorically affirms that Fred Perry has cancelled his trip to Australia this year and will not appear in tennis exhibitions in China and Japan. That sounds like another Farwell to Arms.

Wants Golf Titles

I ENDEAVOURED to confirm this story locally, but those who are most likely to be in the know place complete ignorance. So we shall have to take Mr. Wignall's word for it, unless we prefer to believe that he's writing through his hat. Says Mr. Wignall: "Perry is attached to a sports equipment firm in Australia, but his job will not be affected by the fact that he will not be a competitor in the many Australian tournaments in which he has been accustomed to play in the last four or five years. He is at present in California, but the probability is that he will be back in London within a month. He did not find it easy to win the American championship for the third time, but it will come as a surprise to many to know that it is among his present ambitions to find enough time to become sufficiently proficient at golf to win some titles."

How Can He Do It?

SO now the cat is out of the bag! But I can't quite figure it out, for in the next breath Mr. Wignall goes on to hint very darkly (but none the less clearly) that Perry is determined to turn tennis professional. Given that he is, and will, how in the name of dollars, and cents, can he find "time to become sufficiently proficient at golf"? If Perry signs his name on the dotted line to Mr. Bill O'Brien's little contract it will guarantee him $20,000; but it will also mean that Perry will not have days and weeks at his disposal in order to disport himself on England's fair-

HOCKEY Volunteers Give Good Display

AGAINST THE ARMY

Fast and exciting exchanges featured the hockey match played yesterday on the Club green between the Hongkong Volunteers and an Army eleven. The result was a 1-1 draw, although the Volunteers had slightly the better of the game, and were unfortunate to have a goal disallowed in the closing ten minutes.

J. J. King, Volunteers' custodian, gave an outstanding display, while another feature of the match was the appearance of G.E.R. Divett and R. A. Bates at full back. Neither had ever played in these positions before.

The Volunteers' attack was quite sprightly, although it is considered they would have done better if S. A. Fowler had been playing on the right wing instead of the left. Avtar Singh and Chowdhury who figured in the inside forwards were inclined to be selfish, while Leonard at outside right, though a good trier, could not keep up to the hot pace set.

The Volunteers led one-nil at the interval, Chowdhury scoring in the first five minutes, but early on in the second half Army equalised through Alf Din. Ten minutes from the close, Divett, Volunteers' skipper, changed Fowler from the left wing to inside right and immediately an improvement was noticed. Fowler actually got the ball into the net during the last few minutes, but the goal was disallowed.

HOW PAM BARTON WON U.S. GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

London, Oct. 4.

Miss Pamela Barton (Royal Mid-Surrey), the 19-years-old British women's golf champion, yesterday added the U.S. women's championship to her laurels when she defeated Mrs. Maureen Orcutt Crews 4 and 3 in the final at the Canoe Brook Country Club, New Jersey, U.S.A.

In the morning round Miss Barton was one down at the ninth but finished one up at the end of the first 18 holes by holing a 47ft chip shot at the 10th.

She was unfortunate, says Reuter, to be down at the turn. She played good golf, generally outdriving Mrs. Crews, but her putting was again inconsistent. The English girl was ten yards longer than her opponent at the first, but disaster overtook Miss Barton at the second hole. She sliced her drive into the ditch, played out boldly, but had the misfortune to see her ball hit a tree and bounce back. She reached the fairway safely at the second attempt, and took two more to reach the green. She had a seven for the par five hole.

A RECOVERY

Miss Barton halved the third in four, but missed another half at the fourth, where she failed from three feet and took three putts. After halving the eighth in par six, Miss Barton exploded from a bunker, and turned one down. Mrs. Crews made a great recovery to win the hole, laying her niblick dead to the pin after being bunkered with her second.

The English girl holed a 20 foot putt at the 10th to win it in four strokes. At the 20th the British girl put her second shot on the green hole, high again to win in four to five to become three up. At the next, however, she sliced her drive into the trees, and playing for safety with her second, missed a six-foot putt. Each player took a three at the 22nd. Miss Barton played orthodox golf at the 23rd, which she took in four to five; her opponent's tee-shot struck a spectator and landed in the rough. Both took three putts at the 24th for sixes. Miss Barton was half-symmetrical three feet from the pin.

Mrs. Crews made a great recovery after being in the rough at the next hole to halve it in three.

Three fine wooden shots put Miss Barton on the green at the 26th, and she holed a ten foot putt to win the hole in four to six.

27th, and showed signs of nervousness, Miss Barton taking it in four to five to become five up.

Miss Barton was out in 38 on the second round, against Mrs. Crews' 42.

Scores out: Miss Barton: 4, 4, 5, 3, 4, 6, 3, 5, 4—38. Mrs. Crews: 5, 5, 4, 3, 5, 6, 3, 6—42.

CHINESE & LAI WAH CUP GAME

Likely Appeal To Council

DISSATISFIED

(By "Veritas")

I understand that the Chinese will probably seek the jurisdiction of the Hongkong Football Association Council concerning the Lai Wah Cup match against the Army on Sunday last with which they are dissatisfied.

The Management Committee last night debated the subject but no official statement has been made. I inquired of the Chinese representative this morning whether he would be to offer a statement, but he declined, merely observing that no decision had been reached by the Chinese, although he thought it probable that the matter would be brought before the next Council meeting.

Unofficially I am told that the Chinese are dissatisfied with the referee's decision to play extra time, and secondly, that having made that decision, he abandoned the game making necessary a replay.

PRESS TO PLAY REFEREES

Association Keen

(By "Veritas")

The suggestion which I tentatively put forward at the conclusion of a recent meeting of the Hongkong Referees' Association that a Colony Press team plays a representative side of Colony referees was enthusiastically welcomed at last night's meeting of the Referees' Association.

It was decided to endeavour to arrange such a match, probably on behalf of charity.

It was also agreed that the referees' team should not include league players. No details have yet been worked out, but it is certain that the Press will be willing to field a team, and the match, when it does come off, should possess sufficiently novel features to attract a big crowd.

SCOTLAND'S FOOTBALL TEAM

FOR GAME WITH IRELAND

London, Oct. 26. Five players have been drawn from English clubs to represent Scotland in the international football match against Ireland at Belfast on October 31.

Glasgow Rangers and Hearts will supply the remaining six players.

The English League club players who have been invited to appear for Scotland are: Arsenal (Newcastle), Massie of Aston Villa, McCulloch of Brentford and Napier and Duncan of Derby.

RAIN IS LIKELY FOR THE BIG RACE

CAMBRIDGESHIRE PROSPECTS

Newmarket, Oct. 26.

Heavy rain is likely for the Cambridgehire Handicap which is being run here on Wednesday, and this will make the going, which at present is firm, rather on the soft side, giving the lightweights a better chance.

The bookmakers are praying for a victory by an outsider as has happened many times in the long and varied history of this race, as it is stated that if one of the leading fancied wins, they will pay out over $5,000,000.

There has been heavier betting this year, a feature being that women have been playing a more prominent part in punting than at any time during the last 50 years.—Reuter.

FINALIST IMPROVES TO SECOND FAVOURITE

Finalist, the Cambridgeshire runner which has been drawn in the Irish Sweep by a Kowloon syndicate, has improved in the betting to equal second favourite at 10 to 1, according to a Reuter message received last night.

Sopwith Will Make New Attempt For U.S. Yacht Cup

MR. T. O. M. SOPWITH, Britain's champion yachtsman, has changed his mind about his two-year-old decision never to challenge again for the Americas Cup. In an exclusive interview, he told the Sunday Chronicle that he will race again next year in his new all-steel craft, Endeavour II.

"In 1934, I said I would never challenge again, but I have changed my mind," he said. "I want to bring that cup home to Britain." "At the moment negotiations are proceeding between the Royal Yacht Squadron and the New York Yacht Club, and in a few weeks a definite challenge will be announced." "If I am asked I shall be only too pleased to take Endeavour II over to America for the race." Speaking of his new yacht, Endeavour II, Mr. Sopwith said: "I am certain that she will be as good a boat as our American rival." "I shall do all I can to break the 20-year monopoly which has kept the cup in America."

IT IS TIME WE MADE RUGBY
AN "ON-SIDE" GAMEAUSTRALIANS DON'T LIKE ENGLISH
RULES

RIGHT AND LOGICAL POINTS

(By E. G. Blackwell)

Mr. R. F. Anderson, joint manager of the Rugby League team in Australia, tells me that in the many discussions he had with the leaders of the game "down under" they laid great emphasis on the contention that "ours is an on-side, not an off-side, game." Like most other slogans and catch phrases, this needs a lot of amplifying and explaining.

The Australians do not like our interpretation of the play-the-ball rule, nor the rule which places on-side a player standing in an off-side position when the ball has been kicked or played by an opponent.

A few seasons ago we ourselves recognised the injustice of a man being placed on-side merely by the ball in transit touching an opponent, and the rule was altered to "kicked or played."

I am afraid, however, that this does not meet the case. Spectators, even after several seasons, do not appreciate the difference, but yell "all on-side!" when the ball touches an opponent, however accidentally.

LOGICAL INTERPRETATION
Referees for the most part have not the courage to resist such shouts, and one often sees players allowed to proceed when they should have been stopped.

In point of actual fact, a big percentage of intercepted passes could not be taken were the players not piling in not in an off-side position, yet according to rule a player cannot be off-side from an opponent's pass.

Then again, when the ball is passed forward the player receiving the pass is in an off-side position; and in Australia and New Zealand the offence is treated as such and a penalty kick awarded, instead of, as here, a scrum being ordered.

I believe the differentiation there is that when the ball is passed forward to a player on the run it is deemed a forward pass, but when the player is standing in an off-side position and the ball is passed forward to him he is regarded as off-side, and a penalty kick is ordered.

To my mind, this is a logical interpretation, yet I recall that when the Australians were here in 1929-30 and one of our referees penalised them on such circumstances they raised a storm of protest, and the Rugby League Council gave an official ruling that the decision of the referee in such circumstances should have been "a scrum."

The off-side rule undoubtedly needs complete overhaul. At present the rules make it much too profitable for a player who lies off-side most of the game waiting to snap up an opportunity arising out of the mistakes of an opponent.

I think we should insert a clause to the effect that an off-side player must immediately take steps to put himself on-side.

This would prevent the growing practice of forwards lying within five yards of an opponent waiting for the ball, and not moving at all. Such players are rarely penalised, though, in my opinion, they should be, because their very presence in that position is calculated to obstruct or unsettle the opponent waiting to take the ball.

The rule says: "An off-side player shall not actively or passively obstruct an opponent," but, if, say, a full-back knocks on, most referees allow play to proceed if the ball goes to one of the men who had been lying in an off-side position.

The ruling that a player cannot be off-side from an opponent's pass should be eliminated, as should be the sub-section on page 47 of the Official Guide which reads "when the ball has been kicked or played by an opponent."

A player who is lying off-side should only be placed on-side by one of his side running in front of him with the ball, or by one of his side who has run in front of him after having kicked the ball.

RULE A HANDICAP

The Australians, I believe, are immensely keen about changing the present state of affairs, and in my opinion they have right and logic on their side. Everything possible should be done to prevent players stealing an unfair advantage.

The rule as at present framed is a big handicap and discouragement to full-backs, in particular, showing the enterprise they should in cutting through and making openings for their three-quarters because of the fear of being tackled in possession.

If the question cannot be dealt with before the Australians come here next season, it should certainly be gone into with them, with a view to arriving at a uniform interpretation here and in Australia, and with the object of making on-side play more profitable than the waiting-for-something-to-turn-up policy of players who habitually lie off-side.

America and Europe), and of losing their sea legs. The fact that the players are going to have three best-of-five matches, invites a suggestion to the L.T.A. It is that these three occasions be regarded as one complete contest so that interest in the players' re-appearance after the Manila trip will be sustained. I have no doubt the players would be happy to agree with this. In other words their meeting would be the best of three matches, rather than three distinct encounters.

W. C. Hung Wins K.C.C.

Championship

W. C. (Willie) Hung, former tennis Interceptor, and one time finalist in the Colony open doubles championship, is making a big bid to win three of the events in this year's Kowloon Cricket Club tournament. On Sunday he won the club senior championship for the first time when he beat A. W. Ramsey in the final, 6-0, 6-0, 6-1. In the semi-final Hung overcame the doughty A. E. P. Guest in straight sets, which is a fair indication of his current form. Hung has also reached the final of the handicap singles and with Frank Grose as his partner is well on the way to figuring in the men's handicap doubles final. Two other events have so far been concluded. A. Philippens has won the junior championship and R. S. Capell last week secured the Handicap Singles "B" defeating V. Freeman in the final. Incidentally the achievement of Hung in winning the senior championship brings to an end an uninterrupted reign of several years by E. C. Fincher. Fincher would probably have retained his title only he had to concede a walk-over in the second round.

The American football season is now under way, and here we see one of the novel methods they employ for training. This drill is designed to strengthen leg muscles and to improve balance.

Features of a recent murder case that are believed to have caused some public anxiety are discussed in this article.

by
D. N. PRITT,
K.C., M.P.

HUMAN JUDGMENT Can Be So FALLIBLE.

So fallible that it is unsafe ever to inflict a wholly irrevocable penalty.

IT is a commonplace that it is vital to public confidence in the administration of the law that justice should not merely be done, but should also manifestly appear to be done.

It is not sufficient that the whole legal machinery should command the confidence of lawyers; it should enjoy that of the general body of citizens also.

We know that judges and juries are not infallible; they must occasionally make mistakes. The ideal is that such care should be taken in the preparation and conduct of criminal cases that the public can and will accept the verdicts of juries as based upon the best available evidence and as free from error as human wisdom can achieve.

And in no cases is this more important than in trials for murder, where the penalty itself is death. Now the recent case of Charlotte Bryant has caused a certain amount of public anxiety, and has left doubts in many minds as to whether the high standard of care which we all expect has "manifestly appeared" to have been observed.

IT IS NOT SUGGESTED—IT IS not relevant to suggest—that an innocent woman has been hanged. But there is suspicion that in certain respects the care taken has fallen short of the highest standard, and this may be followed by apprehension that, if the standard is once relaxed, it may one day lead to the killing of some person for a crime of which he or she is innocent.

In these circumstances, it is important to see clearly what are the incidents in the case which have given rise to these anxieties and fears.

These incidents are two in number. Charlotte Bryant's husband died of arsenical poisoning, and she was accused of murdering him. Part of the evidence brought forward by the prosecution against her was to the effect that she had burnt in her copper fire a tin that had contained arsenic.

By way of corroboration of this evidence, the prosecution called an eminent scientific witness. Household coal always contains a small quantity of arsenic, and this witness stated that on analysis of the ashes of the fire in question he had found 149 parts in 1,000,000 of arsenious oxide.

He also stated that the normal amount of arsenious oxide to be found in the ashes of household coal is about 40 to 50 parts in 1,000,000; and the amount of 149 parts actually found in the ashes of this fire was so abnormal that in his opinion it was clear that arsenic in addition to that contained in the coal had been burnt in the fire in question.

Opinion may vary as to the exact importance of this particular item in the whole body of the evidence in the case. It was thought worthy mainly that out of all the scientific gentlemen in England the prosecution was content, in a capital case, to rely upon a gentleman who, however honourable and however eminent, was not able to answer accurately on this particular technical point.

It is a scientific fact, established by long investigation of the combustion of various types of household coal, that an arsenic content eight or ten times greater than the 149 parts in question is fully consistent with no arsenic having been added to the fire—indeed, 149 parts is below, not above, the average.

NOW CHARLOTTE BRYANT WAS a woman of very slender resources. It would have been difficult for her to have provided herself in advance of the trial with the services of an expert witness to combat any misgivings that might be given for the prosecution, even if it could have occurred to her advisers that such a precaution was necessary.

of mention, both in the opening speech of counsel for the prosecution and in the summing-up of the judge, it is possible to argue that it was very important, and it is at any rate impossible to ignore it as unimportant.

Now, the first of the two disquieting features of the case is that this piece of evidence adduced on behalf of the prosecution was inaccurate, mistaken.

It was, of course, given in perfect good faith, after the most careful preparation and study, and no blame need attach to the witness, who cannot be expected to be equally well-informed over the whole field of scientific knowledge.

But the fact remains that out of all the scientific gentlemen in England the prosecution was content, in a capital case, to rely upon a gentleman who, however honourable and however eminent, was not able to answer accurately on this particular technical point.

It is a scientific fact, established by long investigation of the combustion of various types of household coal, that an arsenic content eight or ten times greater than the 149 parts in question is fully consistent with no arsenic having been added to the fire—indeed, 149 parts is below, not above, the average.

AND WE NOW KNOW FROM THE statement made by the Home Secretary in the House of Commons on July 16 that the judges in the Court of Criminal Appeal "for the purpose of deciding the appeal, proceeded on the assumption that this item of evidence was mistaken," and did not "regard the matter referred to as affecting the conclusion reached."

Although it is well arguable that the item of evidence in question was of substantial importance, and although many experienced lawyers think it dangerous in any but the plainest case to assume that any substantial piece of evidence cannot have affected the minds of the jury, it is not necessary to challenge the view of the Court of Criminal Appeal that the appeal should be dismissed.

What is disquieting—and this is the second of the two incidents that have caused anxiety—is that in dismissing the application for leave to call further evidence, without calling for argument from counsel for the prosecution, the Lord Chief Justice used the following words:

"There is no occasion for the further evidence. The application is of the objectionable kind which we foresaw in a recent case when in very exceptional circumstances we admitted further medical evidence. This kind of possibility was admitted, and we set our faces like a flint against it. It would be intolerable if the Court were to listen to the afterthoughts of a scientific gentleman in a capital case or in any other case."

In dismissing the appeal itself, the Lord Chief Justice added:—"It is not necessary to repeat what has already been said as to the application to call further evidence. It is only in the very rarest cases that the Court will hear the evidence of scientific witnesses who after the trial apply their minds to the evidence given in a case in which they were not called, and seek to say that a mistake has been made."

Lawyers may fully understand the position, and their faith in the Court will remain undiminished. But the views of laymen, if less well-informed, are actually much more important to public confidence.

WHAT WILL THEY THINK? Mistaken evidence, has been given in a capital case; it has not been actually acknowledged by the prosecution, but the Court, as is learnt later, is dealing with the case on the footing that it is mistaken.

Counsel for the prisoner asks leave to call a witness to prove that the evidence was mistaken. The Court does not say: "Do not trouble; we will deal with the case on the assumption that this is so."

It says, instead, that the application is objectionable, that it would be intolerable to listen to the afterthoughts of a scientific gentleman, and that it is only in the rarest cases that the Court will hear the evidence of scientific witnesses who "seek to say that a mistake has been made."

However clearly lawyers may understand that there is really no cause for anxiety, the fear seems only too well grounded that public disquiet must grow from such incidents as these.

The only conclusion that laymen are likely to draw is, I think, that the best of human wisdom and judgment are so fallible that it is unsafe ever to inflict a wholly irrevocable punishment.

ROUNABOUT

by The Showman

ANYONE who doubted that I was right on the inside of High International Affairs must have been confounded by the report that President Roosevelt has grown a beard while on holiday.

Did I not tell you, when Mr. Montagu Norman, Governor of the Bank of England, called for America, that "he" was really the Bearded Woman? "He" was really the Bearded Woman? "He" was really the Bearded Woman? "He" was really the Bearded Woman?

I told you that this "President" is none other than the Bearded Woman. Roosevelt and Montagu have both disappeared—if you don't believe me, try to find the "Bearded Woman" this week at Blackpool. Try to find Mr. Montagu in America—and are even now, in secret conclave.

Our old friend from Wepp-on-the-Wold is holding the stage alone. When it is all over she will be shipped back to this country as a doormat.

PROFESSOR JAMES has been praising R.B.C. announcers as "noble fellows," who read to us every night, "very often not knowing what the next line is going to bring for them."

Some of the staff who prepare the news announcer's script are awful tense. The other night an announcer had got as far as "The international situation has been complicated by..." Then he saw what the next line was going to bring him—

"The Due going to bring him..." The Due going to bring him..." The Due going to bring him..."

He stopped, coughed, remarked: "I think if you don't mind I will just straighten my tie," and was thus able to collect his wits and skip over the

A Shock

Middle-aged men have shown me the frayed cuffs of their jackets and said, "I have not had a new suit for seven years." When I returned to London after being through four days of gruelling inquiry into how the Means Test victims are living I was told, "You look as though you had just had a shock."

Yes, I have had a shock, and it is only because there are certain things one cannot say in a newspaper that I am not telling you all I saw and am not describing all the suffering that is going on in the "special" areas. What is happening in the "special" areas is too hideous to describe. The backbone of the nation is being shattered by the suffering borne by the unemployed shipyard workers, the miners and the dockers on the Means Test.

Men are afraid that if they get a job they will not be able to do the work. They feel sick and ill from lack of good food. Women look twenty years older than they are.

"A SK every mother you meet who is not trying to keep her family on a Means Test allowance how she would set about feeding five people on 12s. 6d. a week."

That was what a housewife in Newcastle said to me, I asked her to tell me how she is managing to live on the Means Test.

"We don't live," she said with a grim smile. "That is the secret of the whole Means Test business. None of us are 'living'; we are struggling to exist."

I have now been four days on this investigation into Means Test poverty, and am appalled at the revelation of suffering that I am discovering for myself.

Forced from Home

Sitting by an empty kitchen grate in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Sowerby, 27, Eastbourne-gardens, Walker, Newcastle-on-Tyne, I heard this story of how the Means Test has completely broken up a once happy family.

Out of a family of ten, only two boys and one girl are left at home, and the two boys, aged sixteen and eighteen, both apprentices at the Naval Yard, Walker, earning between them thirteen shillings a week, are being forced to help feed their parents and thirteen-year-old sister.

This is a case where older sons and daughters have been forced away from home by the Means Test. Mr. Sowerby, a shipyard worker, has been unemployed for years. Before his sixteen-year-old son started work he was allowed 32s. a week for himself, wife, son and daughter, nothing being given for the eighteen-year-old boy, earning 10s. 6d. a week. But when, a few weeks ago, the youngest boy started working for 3s. 6d. a week, seven shillings a week was deducted from his shillings a week, bringing it down to 25s. a week.

This family pays 2s. a week rent; insurance, 2s.; clothing clubs, 3s. 6d. (necessary to provide the working boys with boots, shirts and dungarees); doctor, 1s. a week, as Mrs. Sowerby has been ill for years.

That leaves 12s. 6d. a week for food for the whole family of five.

Two sons and two daughters who tried to help their parents have left home because their small earnings, which were not enough to feed them, were taken into account, causing their father's allowance to be drastically cut.

One of the daughters earned 12s. for two weeks' work. Because of this 12s. was stopped from her father's Means Test allowance and the family was worse off than before, as the girl had fares to pay. She left home.

The sons left home for the same reason.

"I used to get a pint of milk a day," Mrs. Sowerby said, "but I cannot afford it now. The boys need more food now they are working. They need clothes and boots, and what they are earning hardly feeds them."

The father of this family has given up everything but his tobacco, and even that has been cut down.

"It hurt me terribly," the mother said, "when I had to ask him to give up the eightpence I used to let him have for his week-end beer. But we couldn't afford it."

Men are afraid that if they get a job they will not be able to do the work. They feel sick and ill from lack of good food. Women look twenty years older than they are.

Life on the Means Test is one long nightmare—a fight against starvation and defecation brought on by hunger.

Mother Sees Spain Reds Behead Boy

—SAYS LONDON "DAILY MAIL"

Train-load of Rebel Prisoners Shot

THE London Daily Mail recently published further evidence received from "unimpeachable sources" of atrocities and sacrilege committed by Reds in Spain.

The London newspaper's articles are republished in the "Telegraph" without comment.

Schools Destroyed

A letter from a Briton in Spain states: Mestre Manuel Sinrot is one of Spain's greatest pedagogues. He founded many schools in the Huelva district. His whole life has been given to the education of the children of the poor.

After the taking of Aracena by the Army, Sinrot was free to go back to Huelva to see how his schools had fared. They were all destroyed.

"And then I suffered the extreme sorrow of knowing that the schools had been destroyed," he said, "and with them the works of art they contained: a wonderful sculpture of the divine Montez, with its authentication, pictures by Pacheco, historical treasures, a whole museum which had been given by friends of the schools."

The Terrorists

The following are brief reports also backed by documentary evidence of other atrocities committed by the Reds in Spain:

Huelva, August 31.—Twenty-two persons were burned in the prison of Salvachea.

Jabugo, September 1.—The town was man called "El Portuque," and the These were supplied with men and of the Mayor or Alcalde, and a latter's son nicknamed "Trotsky," arms from Rio Tinto. Thirty-two under a Red Committee, composed persons were killed after suffering a great deal. The whole town was terrorised until the arrival of the Army. Both "El Portuque" and "Trotsky" escaped.

Teledo.—In one street were shot a group of thirty priests. The bodies were to be buried. When being removed some women gathered and began, by words, to insult the dead. They soon went further, and began to kick the bodies.

Bilbao.—Convent of nuns thought to be firing on Reds. Convent set on fire with petrol. Firemen and police turned away by Reds. Nuns escaped into a cellar. They were dragged out by the militia, stripped, and paraded naked through the streets with insults and blows. What finally happened to them is not clear.

Villaverde.—Extreme east—railway station of Madrid. A train with prisoners on way to Madrid was stopped by Red militia. After a long discussion with the guard over the prisoners and after telephoning Madrid, the prisoners were taken out and shot. Among them was the Bishop of Jau, also shot. He already had been made to walk through the streets of Jau naked in a procession, headed by the episcopal Cross, composed of prostitutes.

Malaga, August 3.—Executions singly and in groups—men, women, and children executed. Many shot in their own houses, or dragged from their houses into the streets and shot. A boy of fifteen executed by beheading, in front of his mother, because his father, who had died two years previously, had been a Fascist. The head was then placed beside the mother, who had fallen unconscious.

Antiguera, August 22.—Murdered 102 persons—men, women, children. Seven Capuchins, almost all men of 70 to 80 years of age, killed. In some cases whole families wiped out, including small children. On one occasion six children all under twelve years of age were killed.

"Phantom Killer" Terrorises Whole City By Night

Chicago, Oct. 15.

CHICAGO is terror-stricken by a "phantom murderer."

He raids by night; striking down beautiful girls with a brick wrapped in a piece of blanket.

During the past week he has assailed four young women in the best known luxury hotels of the city.

His latest victim is Alda Deery, Broadway beauty, idol of the night clubs, known as "Frenchy"—dark, vivacious 21-years-old star of Jack Dempsey's famous New York restaurant cabaret.

Alda is in hospital fighting for her life. The "phantom murderer" crept into her bedroom and injured her so severely that doctors despair of her life.

Working to his usual formula, the mystery "killer" crept up the fire-escape to her bedroom in a Chicago hotel and tried to beat her to death. He then threw a lighted cigarette into the bedroom wardrobe in an attempt to burn the girl to death and hide evidence of his crime.

This plan failed because a show-girl friend of Miss Deery—Dorothy Ryan—was awake in the next room reading a detective story. Dorothy was alarmed by the smell of smouldering cloth.

BLAZING WARDROBE
She raced into her friend's room shouting for help.

The blazing wardrobe was swamped with water. When the smoke cleared Miss Deery was found lying fully dressed on her bed, her clothes savagely ripped, wounded and unconscious.

Round her throat, drawn thin, tight, and knotted, was one of her chiffon silk stockings.

She was rushed to hospital, and doctors worked with frantic haste to save her life.

She recovered consciousness, but was able only to tell a hysterical story of the attack.

Pleed together, it was that she had met "a darling chap" whom she had known for five years.

"We went to a night club, and I had several drinks, and, feeling pretty good, put on a song-and-dance act for the guests."

Then her story became incoherent. "Don't know the time... went away... friend took me to my hotel... left me at the lobby."

WITH HER CLOTHES ON

"All I remember was going to my room and tumbling into bed with my clothes on."

"Next thing, I woke up here."

Miss Deery is the fourth beautiful girl to be attacked by the phantom in Chicago's luxury hotels.

His most remarkable crime was an attack on a lovely young society mother, Mrs. Florence Castle.

He stole into her bedroom and beat her to death. Mrs. Castle's seven-year-old boy Elmer chattered to the murderer after the crime, not realising that his mother lay dead on the bed beside him.

RUSSIA TO BUILD VAST AIR FORCE

Will Exceed Combined Power Of Japan And German Fleets

MEANWHILE STEAMERS TAKING ASSISTANCE TO SPAIN

London, Oct. 27.

It is learned that Russia is planning to adopt "a two-power air standard." It is stated the Soviet intends to build a fighting air force which will exceed the combined strength of Germany and Japan.

This decision is allegedly taken as a result of recent events weakening Russia's military position.

Firstly, there was the remilitarisation of the Rhineland, which obstructs French aid to Russia in a possible emergency;

Second, there was the strengthened European Fascist Bloc, which is openly hostile to Russia;

Thirdly, Britain has apparently shifted her policy in the direction of German friendship;

Fourthly, Belgium's neutrality declaration weakens France's position.—United Press.

Asking French Aid

L'Echo de Paris has received an unconfirmed despatch from its correspondent in Biarritz, which it publishes to-day, stating that Russia has demanded the use of French ports for Soviet commercial war fleets.

It is stated that M. Yves Delbos, the French Foreign Minister, considers the demand unacceptable due to the fact that the Franco-Russian treaty does not apply to the case.—United Press.

Aid For Leftists

Port Said, Oct. 26.

Two Russian steamers passed through the Suez Canal to-day en route to Barcelona, bearing supplies for the Government forces.

It is reported that six other steamers with cargo for Spain are due this week.—United Press.

Istanbul Evidence

Istanbul, Oct. 26.
It is reported by the port authorities that 15 Soviet freighters, fully loaded, passed through the Sea of Marmara on their way to Spain from October 1 to 26.—United Press.

"Fascist Arrogance"

Moscow, Oct. 26.
The Portuguese severance of diplomatic relations with Madrid and also the anti-Russian charges made by the Lisbon Government, are generally termed "Fascist arrogance" in the capital of the Soviet Union. It is noteworthy that the charges are neither denied nor affirmed.—United Press.

Portugal's Charges

London, Oct. 26.
The contention that the Spain civil war is the outcome of Soviet influence in Spanish affairs, is contained in the Portuguese note to the international Non-Intervention Committee in London, under the presidency of Lord Plymouth, despatched by the Lisbon Government in response to charges by the Soviet of Portuguese infractions of the non-intervention pact.

Portugal's note claims that the U.S.S.R. methodically prepared a leftist revolution in Spain, and built up a vast organisation, "supplied with rich means of propaganda and action." In support of this contention, the note alleges, the famous Communist, M. Bela Kun, arrived in Barcelona in March, with other Soviet agents. The note further alleges that the Soviet Ambassador, M. Rosenberg, is "the hidden spirit" behind the Madrid Government and that he has even participated in Cabinet meetings.

The note is regarded in diplomatic circles as mainly a statement of the attitude of the Portuguese Government.—Reuter.

MORE TROUBLE IN BOMBAY

EIGHT STABBING INCIDENTS

Bombay, Oct. 26.
After three days of quietude, disorders again broke out here to-day. There were eight cases of stabbing, six of which occurred after night-fall.—Reuter's Bulletin Service.

ITALO-GERMAN PROTOCOL

FOUNDATION FOR REPORTS RED MENACE STRESSED

London, Oct. 26.

Reports that an Italo-German protocol has been signed, confirming the status quo in the Western Mediterranean, have been received in diplomatic circles in London. From information obtained from various sources the protocol report appears well-founded.

The protocol provides, it is understood, that Spanish sovereignty in the Balearic Islands shall be maintained.

Meanwhile, Herr Joachim von Ribbentrop, the new German Ambassador, has arrived in London. Herr Adolf Hitler is convinced, the new Ambassador said on arrival, that the only real danger for Europe and the British Empire is the spreading of the doctrine of Communism.

He added that close collaboration between Britain and Germany was a vital necessity in their common struggle to uphold their civilisation.

Arms were raised in the Nazi salute by top-hatted leaders of the German community in London as the Ambassador alighted from the train at Victoria Station.—Reuter.

REBELS ARREST BRITONS

DRIVER IS SHOT TO DEATH

OFFICIALS NOW FREED

Talavera, Oct. 26.

A British military attaché in Madrid and an American banker, who were motoring from Madrid to Aranjuez, are reported to have been arrested by insurgents.

They were refused permission to return to Madrid, but were later given provisional liberty under an officer's supervision.

Later, Actually a party of five neutrals was arrested. The British diplomat, Captain Lance, the American banker, Mr. William Hall, the British journalist, Mr. Denis Weaver, and two American newspapermen, Mr. James Mintee and Mr. Henry Gorrell are all in the insurgents' hands.

Their capture is due to the unexpectedly swift advance of the rebels.

Captain Lance and Mr. Hall were in one car and the driver thought they were well within Government territory when they encountered the insurgents.

Mr. Gorrell was in a car by himself and his chauffeur escaped back to Madrid.

In the third car, in which the two American newspapermen were riding, the driver was shot dead.

All the passengers waved their handkerchiefs as a sign of surrender and all were taken to Talavera de la Reina, where they are at provisional liberty.—Reuter Special.

QUEEN MARY GETS BUFFETING

London, Oct. 26.

A heavy south-western gale swept the Channel to-day, forcing all small ships in the Straits of Dover to take shelter. Passengers on the cross-channel steamers had very bad crossings.

A parade of 5,000 bluejackets which was to have taken place at Devonport was cancelled, owing to the violence of the storm.

The Cunard-White Star liner Queen Mary had a severe buffeting when she arrived at Southampton to-day, reporting several minor injuries.—Reuter Special.

ROOSEVELT SPENDING ATTACKED

"IMPUDENT USE OF PUBLIC MONEY"

LONDON FIRES BROADSIDE

New York, Oct. 26.

The charge that President F. D. Roosevelt had made "open and impudent use of public money for political purposes," was made to-day by Governor Alfred Landon, of Kansas, Republican nominee for the United States presidency, when he spoke here.

Governor Landon denounced what he called "the waste and extravagance of the Roosevelt administration."

He accused the President of violating the constitutional rights of Congress by demanding vast sums of money to spend at his discretion.

"These sums were used to break down the power of the states," Governor Landon asserted, "and to coerce the voters."

"The Administration is so callous as to public decency that it forces people to sell their votes for bread," he said.

The unemployed had been told that if they did not support President Roosevelt they would be thrown off the relief rolls. When he took office as the chief executive he would abolish the use of relief funds for political purposes, Governor Landon concluded.—Reuter.

FIGHT NEARS CRISIS

New York, Oct. 26.

President F. D. Roosevelt and his rival for office, Governor Alfred Landon, Republican, have commenced a contest and are bidding for large blocks of electoral votes in the eastern United States.

While the President sat in the White House during the week-end preparing his final speeches, which he will deliver in Pennsylvania, New York and near-by states, Governor Landon pursued his coast-to-coast route to New York, via important eastern centres.

The President plans to move northward from Washington to-morrow night in a special train for the speaking tour in New York State, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware, which, together, represent 100 electoral votes.

His attendance at the fiftieth birthday celebrations of New York harbor's famous Statue of Liberty, will open his final tour. This culminates in his major speech to New Yorkers on October 31 at Madison Square Garden.

AIRMEN RETURN TO RACE

DETROYAT LANDS AT BAGHDAD

CHALLE STILL AT LYONS

Paris, Oct. 26.

Two of France's most famous airmen, Michel Detroyat and Gaston Durmont, arrived safely at Baghdad to-day and at present lead the participants in the £10,000 round-trip race from Paris to Saigon.

Maurice Arnoux and Andre Japy, two other French long-distance aces, crashed their machine at Karachi while leading the contestants in the long marathon. They were not injured, but their plane is seriously damaged.

Jacques Challe and J. Brille, after two false starts, the first of which took them back to Le Bourget, Paris, and the second of which kept them at Lyons, have decided to recommence the race.—United Press.

CHANGE MINDS

Paris, Oct. 26.

A message has been received from Jacques Challe and J. Brille that, having repaired the trouble with their lubrication system, they have changed their minds and will continue the race. They plan to take off at 7.30 a.m. to-morrow.

They are at present at Lyons, more than a full day behind the leaders, Michel Detroyat and Gaston Durmont.—Reuter.

NO LANDING GEAR

Karachi, Oct. 26.

Arnoux and Japy arrived over the aerodrome here at 4.55 p.m. (G.M.T.) to-day, well ahead of the other competitors in the Paris-Saigon race. But their retractable undercarriage jammed as they were about to come to a landing.

They circled the field for 35 minutes and exhausted their petrol before making a landing in which they knew they must crash.

Arnoux, at the controls, made a remarkably skilful landing, but unfortunately damaged the left wing of his machine, and repairs cannot be effected locally. The flight, therefore, has been abandoned and the occupants of the racing plane are returning to France by the Royal Dutch mail plane.—Reuter Bulletin Service.

LEAVE BAGHDAD

Baghdad, Oct. 26.

Detroyat and Durmont, now far ahead of the only other competing plane in the Paris-Saigon marathon, popped off at 1.28 p.m. after arriving at 12.48 p.m.—Reuter Bulletin Service.

FIERCE FIGHT AT TARDIENTA

Rebels Attacking With Greatest Vigour

POWERFUL COUNTER-BLOW BY LOYALISTS TURNED

Hendaye, Oct. 27.

Rebel forces are reported to be using planes, artillery and armoured cars in a terrific drive on Tardienta, 20 miles south of Huesca.

Loyalists claim to have seized German-made arms and ammunition near Tardienta, according to a communiqué from the southern outskirts of Huesca.

Catalan loyalists, repeatedly attacking, say they have killed 200 rebels and that the militia at Alcaniz, after ten days' fighting, has succeeded in linking up with the Teruel forces, which means that a 175-mile line has been established which will form the basis of an attack on Saragossa.

Meanwhile, loyalists from Torrejon report that a rebel bomber has been harassing the Yeles outpost, forcing the population to flee. The loyalists have formed a second line of defence along the Getafe road, however, 15 miles from Madrid. Civilians have also abandoned Pinto, three miles north-west of Torrejon.

From Barcelona it is learned that a decree mobilising Catalan military classes of 1932, 1933, 1934, 1935, has been issued.—United Press.

Troops Fire On Women

London, Oct. 27.

The Daily Mail's Lisbon correspondent to-day writes that the authorities opened fire on the demonstration of 30,000 women of Madrid who paraded demanding the surrender of the capital.—United Press.

Shelter For Americans

Madrid, Oct. 27.

The United States Embassy has advised Americans in Madrid that they are welcome to refuge in the buildings "when it becomes evident that conditions endanger the safety of our nationals." The Embassy is not assuming the responsibility for the safety of the American people, nevertheless.—United Press.

Counter-Attack Repelled

Talavera, Oct. 27.

A strong counter-attack by Government militia on Navacerrada has been repelled after an all-day battle in which, for two hours, the situation looked critical for the insurgents.

The militiamen attacked at dawn, supported by heavy artillery fire, two towns attempting to surround the town from the north and south. Lieut.-Colonel Asensio, commanding the Nationalists, had his hands full holding up a frontal attack with a few trench mortars and machine-guns, until aeroplanes, hastily summoned, began bombing and machine-gunning the attackers, thereby easing the situation.

Meanwhile, the Government flanking columns had practically succeeded in effecting a junction on the road behind Navacerrada, and towards Valmolda. But a strong detachment of 4000 and Legionnaires rushed to the rear and beat off the encircling troops with the aid of aircraft.

It is believed this will likely be the last counter-attack before the Nationalists begin their imminent, final march on Madrid, which some authorities believe will fall within the week.—Reuter.

Aranjuez Isolated

Burgos, Oct. 26.

An official communiqué from the insurgents' headquarters here states that the Rightist armies have severed the Madrid rail communications with the east coast, at the Tago River crossing, and have isolated Aranjuez.

It adds that Rightist artillery, established on the top of a high hill, now dominates Aranjuez station, and that aircraft are bombarding the railroad, the Tago bridge and the station.—United Press.

Rebel Reverse Reported

Barcelona, Oct. 26.

The Catalan forces have occupied Purgadron, which dominates the communications of Tardienta and Alcaniz, in the Saragossa district. The rebel attack on Tardienta.—(Continued on Page 5.)

Quezon Puts Off Trip

HEAVY PRESSURE OF BUSINESS

Manila, Oct. 26.

President Manuel Quezon has indefinitely postponed his trip to China, owing to pressure of business. The President has signed the Assembly's special Bill granting Filipino citizenship to Mr. Francis Burton Harrison, former Governor-General, thus fulfilling Mr. Harrison's promise to President Quezon in 1913 that he would live permanently in the Philippines if Government House were ever occupied by a Filipino.—United Press.

THIS is a SEASON of GAY ACCESSORIES

says VICTORIA CHAPPELLE

LOOK out for new and amusing accessories this winter. They'll give your outfit an individual and striking note. Or invent them yourself. It's not so difficult as it sounds.

Here are a few suggestions sketched by Ettinger which will give you ideas.

Just below is a leather bracelet into which is tucked a lip-stick.

Below that is a three-stranded fur collar for which a georgette backing might be used.

It is fastened with out-size decorative hooks and eyes—a sample of which you see sketched above it.

HOW do you like the spray of flowers at the throat of the high-necked frock on the immediate right? These should be as flat as possible, because you want a matching spray to pin or stitch on to the back of each of your gloves; or, not to overdo the thing, why not the left glove only?

A SQUARE of the thinnest velvet is what you tuck into the breast-pocket of your dress this year—as a handkerchief. And if you want to velvet also.

THE thinnest velvet square tucked into a breast pocket; gloves slit up the back instead of the front; flower heads slotted through a belt—these are just a few of the amusing ideas suggested by Victoria Chappelle to lend gaiety and chic to your autumn ensemble.

YOUR belt? Make it of practical for day-time, but for the evening it would take all the slots in it. Through these pull little odds-and-ends which usually four or five little felt, flowers, ruin an evening bag.

POCKETS are the answer to despairing inquiries as to how to brighten a dull would be, perhaps, a little im-day frock—pockets in black velvet or thin black suede. One should be placed well below your shoulder and the other in front of your hip; both could have flaps and, if you like, an inverted plait in the centre.

On the plainest of your wool dresses (or on a jacket which fastens up to the throat) you could wear a collar made like the one in the centre of the sketch, with a narrow fur border and tied together at the throat.

The gloves shown are the newest kind, which open at the back instead of in the palm. Like the collar, they have a fur edging and the same kind of tie-ups.

APPLE HARVEST

By Doris KNIGHT

IT is such a good year for apples that housewives are wondering what to do with the tremendous amount of fruit they are gathering from their trees at present. Windfalls are in profusion, and there are plenty of ways of using these so that they are turned into profitable stores for the winter months.

Apple Jelly is a great favourite, and keeps extremely well. If it is put into small moulds, it makes a good standby for the sweet course, as the little jellies can be turned out at a moment's notice, surrounded with sliced banana and topped with cream.

Cut the apples into quarters without removing the peel, but taking out the cores and any unsound parts if you are using windfalls. Put into a preserving pan with cold water to come about half way up the fruit, and cook until quite soft.

Put the pulp into a jelly bag suspended over a bowl and leave to drain all night. Do not attempt to squeeze, or the clearness of the jelly will be spoilt.

Measure the juice, return to the pan and heat. Add a lemon to each pint of juice, bring to the boil, then boil fast until a little sets when tested on a saucer. Put into small glass jars or moulds, cover, and do not disturb until the preserve is set. Then store in a cool, dry place.

Apple Ginger Jam is another favourite which is quite simple to make. Peel, core and quarter the apples, put into the preserving pan, barely cover with cold water and simmer until a pulp. Put through a sieve, return to the pan with 1/2 lb. of preserving sugar and a 1/4 teaspoonful of ground ginger to each pint of pulp. Boil, stirring nearly all the time to prevent burning, until it sets when tested. Put into jars and cover.

Golden Sultana Tart is an interesting way of using apples on the menu. Line a large tart plate with short crust pastry, and strew a layer of cleaned sultanas over the bottom. Sweeten apple pulp with golden syrup, mix in a well-beaten egg, and fill the tart with this mixture. Cover with strips of pastry arranged in lattice pattern, brush over with beaten egg, and bake until browned.

Apple Trifle makes quite a gala sweet if plenty of coarsely chopped blanched almonds are mixed in with the sweetened apple puree as well as some chopped crystallised fruits.

Put a layer of sponge cake moistened with sherry at the bottom of a glass bowl, add a good layer of the apple mixture, cover with custard, then decorate the top with crystallised fruits and whipped cream piped on in fancy design.

Scientists Can Tell You Now

WHY BLONDES GO GREEN WITH ENVY And Brunettes Are Soulful While Redheads Are Fiery

BACK TO U.S.

Dot Kilgallen, the American flying reporter, has completed her flight around the world.

Radio Priest Defies Vatican

SLASHING ATTACK ON U.S. PRESIDENT

New York, Oct. 15.

The comparative calmness which has marked Father Coughlin's political speeches following reports of Vatican displeasure at his tactics disappeared at Cincinnati last night. There he called President Roosevelt "anti-God and Radical," and assured his hearers: "When any upstart dictator in the United States succeeds in making in this nation a one-party form of Government and the ballot becomes useless, I will have the courage to stand up and advocate the use of bullets."

Father Coughlin warned his hearers that unless the present trend was stopped the 1940 election might be the last under a democratic form of government here.

"The Red flag," he shouted, "has been uplifted in America, and we must stop, look and listen lest disaster confront us. . . . It is Roosevelt, the incompetent President, we must remove from office if we are to save America for the people. He knows how to save it for the Democratic Party, but hasn't the intestinal fortitude to tell the Communists that their lousy criminal votes are not acceptable to him."

Father Coughlin called Governor Landon an "honest, God-fearing man," but "so old-fashioned that he wants us to return to the gold standard, which more than anything else got us into the World War." He attacked the President's programme of planned economy, saying "the Bible commands 'increase and multiply,' but Roosevelt says 'Destroy and devastate,' and therefore I call him anti-God and Radical."

COLOUR AFFECTS TEMPER

DARK PEOPLE ARE HEALTHIER

MANY people believe that there is no greater difference between blonde, brunette and red-haired women than between three motor-cars of the same model painted in different colours.

Scientists have discovered that that view is all wrong.

The three types are as distinct from each other as three human races; and there is ample evidence that they may have been distinct races before humanity became so thoroughly mixed up by emigration and intermarriage.

Here are some of the striking differences between the three types of women:—

A blonde averages 150,000 separate hairs on her head.

A brunette has between 80,000 and 100,000.

A redhead may have as few as 5,000.

This is because red hair is coarser than blonde or brunette.

If a red-haired woman grew 150,000 hairs her scalp would have to be six times larger than that of the average woman.

Rainbow Colours

Blondes' skins are not really white, nor are brunettes' skins really brown.

They each contain large quantities of red, orange, yellow, green, blue, indigo and violet.

A blonde has more yellow in her skin than a brunette.

A brunette has less green or green blue than a blonde.

Redheads have a more equal blending of all the colours.

A blonde can really turn green when the blood leaves her cheeks as a result of a sudden shock or nausea, because the extra green pigment in her skin then becomes more prominent.

Martyrs To Cold

Blondes and redheads are very susceptible to skin affections. A real brunette is practically immune.

Brunettes seldom suffer from infantile paralysis and diseases of the nervous system.

Blondes are martyrs to the common cold, influenza, and diseases of the throat.

Brunettes usually have the best teeth.

Blondes and redheads are often victims of rheumatism and rheumatic fever.

The skin of most blondes will not tan even after long exposure to sunlight. It merely becomes red—and sunburned over—and over again.

The skins of brunettes have the power to make a dark pigment which obviates and neutralises the dangerous rays of sunlight.

Rage And Grief

There is also a great mental as well as a physical difference between the three types.

Blondes give way to excesses of rage and grief. They are more likely to kill those who have thwarted them than the other types.

Brunettes are sadder and more soulful. They are more likely to commit suicide than to use physical violence towards others.

Blondes are cold, unemotional and calculating.

Brunettes are excitable, generous and often sad.

Redheads are fiery and easily angered, but their anger soon cools down and they seldom nurse resentment.

Golden Tints

Why some women have flaming red hair is a mystery.

The red colour is not due to the same type of pigment as that which gives the distinctive colour to brunettes, and the absence of which is the cause of the golden tints of the blonde.

It is believed to be due to the way in which light is reflected from the thicker hair of the redheads.

Red hair is almost transparent, which explains why, in intense sunshine, the heads of women with this type of hair sometimes resemble a gorgeous sunrise.

Once A Brunette . . . There are few perfect blondes and only one perfect blonde for every 100 brunettes.

And as a result of heredity all the types blend in the utmost confusion. But here is one thing that science is confident about:—

A brunette remains a brunette no matter how much she bleaches; and a blonde is still a blonde in spite of gallons of darkening dyes.

Their blood, their nerves and their minds cannot be changed by the hairdresser.

Blondeness and bruneteness are only the outward signs of the mystery of personality, which lies far deeper than the skin.

Tail Lights For Sheep

Sheep roving the western plains of Queensland may soon carry a "tail light" as protection against the dingy, or Australian wild dog, the depredations of which in some districts among stock are considerable.

The "light" is the invention of Francis Carley, a railway worker. It is in the shape of a metal disc, in the centre of which is a bicycle reflector or "cat's eye," says Austral News.

The edges are painted with phosphorus and give the effect of a ring of fire. The disc is attached to the sheep's wool by a strong clip.

Stalin Reinstates Fairies

THE Soviet Government has decided to reintroduce fairies, after having officially abolished them.

Now they are to be officially recognised and subsidised with Government money.

Stalin has ordered a grant of 2,500,000 roubles to be made for the building of a Children's House in Moscow, which will be a huge toy emporium.

Leading Soviet artists and sculptors have been commissioned to produce statues of fairy-tale characters and to paint friezes telling the old Russian fairy stories.

An electrical impulse released by President Roosevelt at the opposite side of the continent sent 3,000,000 cubic feet of water a minute tumbling through the 12 outlets at the Boulder Dam and put the mighty Colorado River to work. This air view shows a general view of the great dam at its formal opening with mighty Niagaras of water pouring from outlets on both sides of the dam.

MYSTERY WOMAN ARRIVES IN LONDON

On "Secret" Mission WIDOW OF RABID GREEK ANTI-ROYALIST

London, Oct. 18.

MME. HELENA VENISELOS, enigmatic, 63-year-old widow, whose back-stage role in Greek politics has made her the "mystery" woman of the Balkans, has arrived in London on a mission which she described to me yesterday as "official" and "secret."

Staying quietly at Grosvenor House, Park Lane, Mme. Veniseleos looks back on a turbulent career, utterly incongruous with her fragile womanliness, soft-lined features, generous smile.

On her last visit to London, in 1934, she was shadowed by four guards with automatic pistols. Husband Eleutherios Veniseleos, Greek statesman, ex-Prime Minister, rabid anti-Royalist, was ill at the time, sought recovery in England.

Yesterday Mme. Veniseleos was dressed simply in black. The night before she dined in a black evening dress. She mourns her husband, Eleutherios Veniseleos died last March.

"Are you back in politics again?" I asked.

"Who knows?" was Madame's enigmatic answer.

"Why have you come to London?" "My mission is official. You will know later. For the present it is secret."

"Are you attached to the Government in Athens?" "I do not know."

Assassination Bid

Mme. Veniseleos covered herself again in mystery. The same mystery that shrouded the attempted assassination in 1933, when four bullets in a rain of 200 wounded her as she fled through Athens in a car with her husband. Same mystery that beclouded her financial support of abortive Veniselist revolution in 1935.

Money has been one mainspring of her power. London-born daughter of John Stefanovitch Schiltz, wealthy merchant, Mme. Veniseleos inherited and amassed a fortune estimated at £2,000,000.

As a young woman in Baywater, she fell into fatal admiration for the Greek statesman whom she married in 1921. She bought him a home in Greece, founded a maternity hospital in Athens, gave Greece a London Legation in Upper Grosvenor Street.

Her fiery support of the Veniselist cause emblazoned her name in Greek politics—to Royalists, a menace—to Republicans, a heroine.

Now she returns to London—quiet, mourning, widowed. But still mysterious.

POLICE CONSTABLE ASSAULTED

INCIDENT ON B. & S. STEAMER

For assaulting a police constable on duty on the s.s. Anhui on October 21, on route from Singapore to Hong Kong, and for damaging his uniform, Wong Chi-po, 24, fireman on the ship, native of Shanghai, was brought before Mr. E. Himsforth at the Kowloon Magistrate's Court this morning. Detective Davies appearing for the prosecution.

It was stated that at 3.40 a.m. complainant, on duty at the gangway grill door, was approached by three firemen who had come out of the engine room and demanded that the door be opened so that they could go to their quarters on the lower decks. Complainant had been instructed to see that the door was closed until 3.45 a.m. to comply with the Piracy Defence Regulations. Defendant, one of the three, came angry and kicked at the door, but was told to be quiet by complainant who also shoved him away. Defendant swung at complainant, inflicting injuries to his chest, and tearing his shirt. Another Chinese constable heard the noise and came to complainant's assistance to take him to the engine room, and the matter was reported. Complainant was delegated to watch for defendant coming out at the end of the watch, and was instructed to take him to the captain when he came up. He failed to do so for a good many hours, and when he did come up, attempted to start another fight with complainant.

Defendant was watched for the remainder of the voyage, and when Hong Kong was reached, the police brought Water Police constables who arrested him.

After evidence had been called, Det.-Sgt. Davies told his Worship that the Captain wished a very serious view to be taken of the case, as if this man were allowed to take fire with the duty of a pirate patrol constable, others would take liberty to do the same, and the consequences would be very serious.

The head fireman was called to give evidence of the character of the defendant. He stated that defendant had been with him two months and had been a very diligent worker during that time having caused no previous disturbance.

His Worship fined defendant $30, or six weeks imprisonment on the first charge, and ordered him to pay $3 amends on the second charge, or serve an additional eight days.

SPECIALISED IN IRON DOORS KOWLOON CITY THIEF SENTENCED

Yeung Loi, 40, unemployed, of 30 Tuk Ku Ling Street, was brought before Mr. E. Himsforth this morning at the Kowloon Magistrate's Court in connection with the discovery of an organised gang of iron door thieves, working mainly in the Kowloon City district. He was charged with theft of four iron doors between October 10 and 25, two belonging to Chan Hui-pong, of Tsang Fook Villas, and two to Lai Ng, of Tuk Ku Ling village, and the theft of one iron gate and two sheets of iron from Al Lum, foki of the Kowloon Dairy Farm, working at Customs Pass.

Inspector Portallion appeared for the prosecution.

It was stated that the fourth larceny, on October 25, was the one that brought about defendant's arrest, when Al Lum saw a coolie carrying some iron strands which he recognised as having been cut out of the door which had been missing since early the same morning. The coolie claimed having been hired to carry the iron to a shop in Yau-mat and he was able to find the man who he stated hired him. This man, defendant, admitted not only the charge, but volunteered the fact that he had been stealing more iron doors throughout the city.

On each of the four charges, His Worship sentenced defendant to three months in gaol, the terms to be served consecutively.

Reasons why 'MANSION' is so economical

'Mansion' being a highly concentrated wax polish, only very little is needed to give a mirror-like brilliance, to a large floor surface.

'Mansion,' the preservative polish, lengthens the life of Linoleums.

Because 'Mansion' gives such a lasting brilliance, floors need less frequent polishing.

DENTIST ROBBED OF NOTES

SNATCHER SENT TO PRISON

A pick-pocket was arrested yesterday and brought before Mr. K. Keen at the Central Magistrate's Court where he pleaded guilty to the charge of having stolen four $1 Hong Kong notes from a dentist, Lau Yuet-shing, of 231 Temple Street.

Inspector Mair, prosecuting, said that about 11 o'clock yesterday morning complainant was walking in Connaught Road Central from east to west when the defendant came from behind and extracted the notes from his outside coat pocket. Complainant grabbed hold of defendant's arm and there was a short struggle which attracted the attention of a District Watchman who came on the scene and arrested defendant. Inspector Mair added that complainant's money was kept in a very loose pocket and that the man was asking for trouble by keeping the money there, as it was visible to pedestrians.

Defendant, who had a very bad record and who was under police supervision, was sentenced to four months' rigorous imprisonment.

PRESERVATION OF BRITISH IDEALS

With the almost daily clash of divergent political ideas creating ill-feeling in Europe, a very pertinent question for Britons is whether the reasonable measure of freedom won by centuries of effort is to be permitted to slip into disrepute, or whether it shall become the corner-stone of British national life. A well-known educationalist has been giving this matter considered attention by the process of examining certain prominent national characteristics of the British people. Going back over history, he has found evidence of the individualism of the race, the intensely practical nature of the people, and their genuine aversion from being dragged or submerged by some great idea. A point arises, of course, whether it is possible to re-mould national character. At first glance, this might seem almost impossible, but since the Great War there have been outstanding examples in Europe of mass suggestion being used in a manner which would have been unthinkable in earlier years. Another point which has been raised is whether, if we had lost the war, we should have adopted a form of government similar to that of Germany to-day. The authority to whom we have referred hazards the view that out national characteristics are such that we would never willingly bow the knee to dictators, of whatever school of political thought they might be. At the same time, it cannot be overlooked that the allurements of Fascism to some minds and of Communism to others do illustrate the danger of taking democracy for granted. Nothing that is worth while in national life can be perpetuated except by effort. A need therefore arises to harness the idealism of youth and to indicate in no uncertain manner to the rising generation the value of a true democracy at a time when liberal ideals are being widely challenged. If that work is ignored, the time might easily come when the pent-up idealism of youth would be let loose in other directions. The points which need constant stressing are that the main consideration underlying representative rule in Britain is to make laws which are not repugnant to the citizens, but which are such as to bring forth a ready response from the people as a whole.

PROFESSOR EINSTEIN (German), in spite of his difficulties to the world, exalted by the Nazis.

THE time has come to have a Science League of Nations. Indeed, it is overdue. A few years ago, one might have urged it as an altruistic measure to help humanity. To-day the scientists must have a world organization in self defence.

Make no mistake about it—Science, the intellectual democracy, is in as great danger as social democracy. And the scientists know it. During the last few weeks I have taken part in private discussions with eminent international scientists on this question of world organization. They take the gravest possible view of the situation. They see scientists being regimented in the name of "Nationalism"; they are being turned into the well-drilled soldiers of totalitarian states.

Mussolini has made Italian scientists take an oath of loyalty so that any discovery, which might help the rest of the world, becomes an official secret and its disclosure high treason. Hitler has created a "Nordic Science" and has Nazified discovery.

"Nationalism is the contradiction of Science," declared Professor Conklin, President of the American Association, discussing the international project with me. "Science means, essentially, the discovery of knowledge for the benefit of humanity in general. It depends, entirely, on freedom of experiment, freedom of expression, and freedom of exchange of ideas and results. Destroy that and it is the end of Science."

"You know, professor," said a scientist friend of mine to one of the most eminent German scientists recently, "I refuse to accept any scientific announcement from Germany nowadays. I do not believe your scientific journals." "Neither do we," said the German bluntly. "What a travesty! Even in international conference."

ences, the German representatives are Nazi first and scientists afterwards. When Government delegations are sent to scientific congresses at which only accredited delegates are entitled to vote, the German Government discovers how many representatives other Governments are sending.

They then appoint their nominees—purging the lists of any "free thinkers"—and send a delegation big enough to outvote the others. And before they leave they receive instructions as to what to say and how to act from a special department of Goebbels' Ministry.

But Fascist tendencies are not confined to Fascist states. British and American scientists are uneasy. They see attempts even in the two great democracies, to gag and blind science.

In American State universities, scientific views or discoveries which somebody thinks are "subversive" have led to dismissals. And, don't let's fool ourselves, it can happen here too, where research depends so largely on "tid" subsidies.

Something, however, has happened which has given scientists fresh courage. The British Association, after four years' pressure, both from within and without, has taken its stand. It has turned the attention of Science to social problems. It has realised that Science may help to create social problems, social influences can also make their impact felt upon Science.

Other visiting scientists were tremendously impressed by the outspokenness of the British scientists. From every branch of

But those who hold up their hands in horror at the enormities of China's war lords would do well to reflect upon their own position before voicing condemnation.

Though the Chinese have undoubtedly prostituted the benefits of scientific progress brought to them from the West to their own purposes of banditry and bloodshed, it can hardly be said that Europe is making any better use of the advantages and rewards that science is placing in her hands.

If Chinese tuchas and tuchas have used railways and river steamboats for the purpose of spreading slaughter and suffering among the civil community, Europe's dictators and rulers seem to be determined to use the aeroplane and the latest knowledge in chemistry to still death and terror horrible ends.

Before reproaching China's military politicians for warring upon defenceless women and children, can we say with any truth that our women and children will be more secure from outrage and butchery if war is again let loose in Europe?

MAN'S EVIL GENIUS

Certainly, even though we discount as lying propaganda half the stories of atrocious coming to us from both fronts in the Spanish conflict, there will remain a residue of revolting brutality, unmitigated by the worst crimes of China's militarists.

Viewed broadly, and in relation to the tenacity with which she holds to the customs of her ancient civilisation, China has had little more opportunity to adapt herself to railways than has Europe to become air-minded.

Heaven knows that she has made no worse use of them than that contemplated by the designers of the latest and most powerful types of

Dictators—Hands Off SCIENCE!

Science came pronouncements of social affairs which were like smashing windows and letting cold draughts of reality into the close-cloistered, science-fugged laboratories in which, in the past, scientists secluded themselves like hermits.

Four years ago some of us, both inside and outside Science, argued that Science, through the B.A., should apply itself to social problems. We were told it was "not the scientist's job." Now they have discovered that it is. And they have "got down to it."

At the same time, we argued that there must be a Science League of Nations. We were told that Science, with its articles of world faith, needed no organization.

That is altered now. Support is being eagerly canvassed by the leading scientists themselves for an International Association for the Advancement of Science.

There exists, vaguely, an International Academy of Sciences. It is, true to its name, "academic." Before the war it had some influence, but it "outlived" German scientists during the war and crippled its purpose. The object of the new association would be not to turn scientists out but to bring scientists in.

The proposed International Association could not do better than to adopt as the basis of its constitution, the spirit of the British Association charter:

"To give a stronger impulse and more systematic direction to scientific inquiry; to promote intercourse of those who cultivate Science in different parts of the Empire, with one another and with foreign philosophers; to obtain more general attention to the objects of Science and the removal of any disadvantages of a public kind which impede its progress."

That last part, so long obscured by scientific cobwebs and the dry dust of the laboratories, is the key to the new outlook of Science. It does not mean just "bringing the Man-in-the-Moon down to the Man-in-the-Street," just giving popular or semi-popular lectures; it means bringing scientific progress into line with social affairs.

The international association, therefore, would be concerned, not with sectional discussions, but with aligning Science with world problems. And, so important to-day, safeguarding the interests of scientists as individuals, and of Science as a democratic institution.

It would have a non-exclusive constitution. Anyone who would subscribe to its constitution, to the basic principles of Science, and its code of international freedom, should be admitted.

Let me give one ready-made example of the type of work it would promote and advance. There is in existence an excellent League of Nations Technical Committee on Nutrition. It is carrying out a world-wide survey of the food which is needed by people throughout the world in order to maintain health, and comparing it with the food available and contrasting it with the food which, owing to economic conditions, is consumed.

The nutrition scientists can measure the requirements and the agricultural scientists can measure the resources, and the economists can show the shortcomings. That committee may be the foundation of a new world economic order based upon the free distribution of the primary necessities of life-food.

Professor Conklin, as President of the American Association, proposes as a start a union between the scientists of the English-speaking world. As a nucleus, that is admirable, and since Sir Josiah Stamp, President of the British Association, is almost as well known in America as he is here, he could crown his term of office, by helping to promote it.

But, with Mme. Curie-Joliot, famous daughter of famous parents, as Under-Secretary for Scientific Research in France, French co-operation should be easily obtained. Sweden, Denmark, Norway, Holland, Belgium and Russia, and many other countries would, I am positive, subscribe to the objects and accept the scientific ideal.

What is needed immediately is a "Magna Charta of Science" reaffirming the basic principles, stating the democratic creed, renouncing the abuse of science and invention as destructive forces, and reconsecrating Science to the service and advancement of humanity and of civilisation.

CUSTOM meets us at the cradle and leaves us only at the tomb.
—ROBERT G. INGERSOLL.

Science, The Destroyer

CHINA'S War Lords, it is to be feared, have been given a new toy to play with in the Canton-Hankow Railway, the new line which forms the final connecting link in railway communications between China and Canton.

Hitherto the railway development of China, so much encouraged by foreign enterprise and capital, has served less as a means of exploiting the vast industrial resources of the country than it has to enable the militarists to plan and effect bigger, brighter, and bloodier campaigns of civil war.

The advantages of the railway for the rapid transport of armed troops was immediately seized upon by the rival generals, and in many cases the finest locomotives and rolling stock of European and American production were nobbled for military purposes almost immediately upon disembarkation on Chinese soil.

This is, of course, all most highly reprehensible, and it has been the cause of ceaseless but unavailing protest on the part of the Powers whose national interests have been disregarded.

From the humanitarian point of view the offence is the more heinous in that the Chinese generals have less liking for straightforward battle between their opposing troops than they have for stealing a march upon each other by unexpectedly letting their unpaid and starving armies loose upon a rival's territory to plunder, pillage, and destroy the unhappy civil community.

EUROPE'S BAD EXAMPLE

The new length of railway, running as it does through some of the most mountainous and hitherto impenetrable regions and crossing the whole length of China's most militantly inflammable province, Hunan, may well be feared to serve as an incentive to fresh horrors for her people rather than as an instrument to establish their industrial prosperity.

aircraft that are being produced with such frantic haste by those very Powers who prate to her of Western culture and humanitarianism.

Some evil genius in mankind seems to turn every one of his inventions to the purposes of bloodshed. With the first clumsy visions of flight through the air came the thought of the splendid means afforded by a flying-machine for raining down destruction upon an enemy.

In the light of our present knowledge of aerodynamics it seems a wild stretch of imagination to have thought for a moment that a balloon filled merely with hot air could ever be made to support the heavy weight of weapons of offence. Yet it is clear from contemporary records that some such thought must have been entertained by the Montgolfiers and other French pioneers of aeronautics.

The aeronauts of 150 years ago were boastful of the deeds they would do once they succeeded in lifting themselves from off the earth. In fact it was the rumours of what the Montgolfiers were preparing across the Channel that first awoke in the minds of British people that unpleasant sensation, now familiar to all, of insecurity against aggression from the air.

Such fears, entertained only by the more timid and credulous, were ridiculed, as were also the claims of the French inventors. A caricature, published in London in 1783, pictures Montgolfier blowing "soap-bubbles" and declaiming to himself, "O by Gar, I will be de grand inventor. Dis will immortalise my King, my country, and myself. We will declare de war against our enemies; we will make de English quake, by Gar. We will intercept their comp, we will intercept their Fleets, and we will set fire to their dockyards, and, by Gar, we will take Gibraltar in de air-balloon; and when we have conquer de English den we conquer de other countries, and make them all colonies to de Grand Monarque."

Stalin Is Seriously Ill: Heart Attacks Worse Since The Recent Executions

Roland Hartley, former governor of Washington, was nominated by the Republicans to run against Gov. Clarence Martin this winter.

SECRET RETREAT NEAR MOSCOW

WARSAW, Oct. 15. JOSEF STALIN, mighty Red Dictator of Soviet Russia, is lying seriously ill in a secret retreat near Moscow.

He is suffering from angina pectoris, a disease of the heart.

He has suffered from this complaint for several years, but the excitement of the last months caused by his purge of Trotskyist opposition has made it worse.

The serious state of Stalin's health has been responsible for the fact that he has not spoken in public for months, and has been absent from all important parades.

Recently he went to Tiflis, Georgia, where fifty-seven years ago he was born the son of a cobbler.

But he went up the mountains and this affected his heart.

He was rushed back to Moscow.

INJECTIONS

Professor Pletney and other doctors are in constant attendance. They have already given several injections.

Stalin has had several heart attacks and sudden attacks of asphyxia.

Professor Pletney has "dictated" to the U.S.S.R. ruler that he should rest for an unlimited period.

Although his condition is not critical it can become so at any moment. Sudden excitement and he can die on the spot. On the other hand he may live for years.

His illness has caused a special meeting of the Council of People's Commissars to decide his successor.

Stalin's wish, it is believed, is that he should be followed not by one man but by a triumvirate.

This would be formed by Soviet war lord Voroshilov, Commissar for Heavy Industry, Ordzhonikidze, and Stalin's father-in-law, and Commissar for Transport Kaganovich.

This triumvirate, an open secret in Moscow, is referred to by the Muscovites as "mixed sweets" because the first is a Russian, the second a Georgian, and the third a Jew.

In California, where striped bass derbies are serious business and participated in by some 50,000 anglers, fishing isn't restricted to the men folk. At Rio Vista, where the angling derby originated four years ago, we find Geraldine Brown all primed with her entry for this year's affair.

SHOULD THIS BABY BE KEPT ALIVE?

The Problem

A week-old baby boy was found to be suffering from a rare internal disorder.

Doctors said: "If we operate we might keep him alive, but he would be a hopeless invalid, mentally and physically."

His mother said: "I'm his mother. I want him. He mustn't be allowed to die."

His father said: "I think it unfair to operate. He'd hate us for giving him that horrible chance."

A London staff reporter in New York, cubing this problem story gave these further details:—

The parents who battled against each other—for their baby's sake—are Mr. and Mrs. Julian Tafel, of Chicago.

The baby, only a few ounces short of nine pounds, is in Chicago's Danian-American Hospital.

Dr. Eastman, who brought him into the world, told the parents: "I think he should be kept alive; that's my personal as well as my professional feeling, but I cannot operate without your consent."

Dr. Eastman, after consulting lawyers, settled the argument by performing the operation that may save the baby's life.

Picnic For The Blind

Sir,—May I through your columns express our sincere and grateful thanks to all those who so kindly contributed to the success of the picnic last Saturday by donations, loans of cars, and gifts?

The response to our appeal this year was truly generous. Since our last acknowledgment we have received $9 from the Hon. Mr. E. Taylor and $2 from "A.L.L.", making the total donations $507, and 23 cars were put at our disposal.

In addition to the outing and tea and a special anniversary dinner that night, gifts of handkerchiefs, towels, soap, and sweets were made to each of the 54 girls and a surplus of $434.10 is being handed over to Miss Moritz, of the Blind Home, for the purchase of suits and shoes as New Year presents for the girls.

Our thanks are also due to Mrs. C. G. Anderson and Mr. M. R. Deb for invaluable help, to Dr. and Mrs. T. Y. Li for sweets, W. R. Loxley & Co., Ltd. for soap, Jardine, Matheson & Co., Ltd. for biscuits, Dairy Farm, Ltd. for ice cream, Colonial Dispensary for soap, Pioneer Family Store for sugar, St. John's Cathedral for loan of crockery, the Shek-O Club for water, the Flying Squad for providing an escort, and the Press for affording publicity to our appeal.

In conclusion we would like to thank all those who gave up their time and assisted at the Picnic. Their help was indispensable.

A. UNQUART.

On Saturday, October 31, the Equine Sports Club are holding a dinner dance at the Peninsula Hotel commencing at 8 p.m.

Miss M. C. Bragg, of Kimberley Road, was summoned before Mr. E. Cochrane and fined $10 for allowing her brown and white poodle to roam in the streets in Kimberley Road, near Carnarvon Road without a muzzle at 11.30 p.m. on October 12. Det.-Sergeant Davies appeared for the prosecution.

The sight of about 20 well-dressed Chinese, walking into the Central Magistracy this morning attracted considerable attention. On enquires, it was revealed that they were Cadet Officers from Canton and that they were touring the building. They stayed in one of the Courts for a while to see how British justice was administered, and then escorted by Det.-Sergeant Cushman, they continued their tour over other parts of the building.

Appearing on remand before Mr. K. Keen at the Central Magistracy this morning, Ching To-sang, 23, a shop fold, was bound over in $100 to be of good behaviour for one year, for having having embezzled from his employer, Lal King, an accountant, a sum of $92.92. Det.-Sergeant Cochrane stated that the money had been refunded to complainant by defendant's mother, Mr. Keen remarked to the defendant that he had his mother to thank for not having to undergo a prison sentence.

For the theft of a chicken, worth a dollar, a 25-year-old unemployed man, Lo Ho-yin, was brought before Mr. K. Keen at the Central Magistracy this morning. Sergeant Matches said a District Watchman saw defendant walking in a suspicious manner along New Street yesterday. He stopped him and found that he was hiding a chicken under his coat. Defendant later revealed that he had stolen the chicken from a married woman, Wong Sik, of 20 Tai Ping Street. He was bound over in a sum of $50 for one year.

Last week's return of notifiable diseases shows 17 cases of typhoid (eight deaths), 15 of diphtheria (five deaths), two of scarlet fever and one of measles. There were 66 deaths from tuberculosis. Yesterday, two further cases of diphtheria and one of typhoid were reported.

A seven-year-old boy, Leung Ka, was knocked down by a motor car No. 144 in Queen's Road West on Monday afternoon. He was taken to the Government Civil Hospital for treatment. Chun Hing, aged 49, a woman, was taken to the same hospital after she had been injured by a lorry No. 2261 in Connaught Road West near Eastern Street earlier on Monday.

For stealing a cotton singlet from the Sun Sun Company in Des Voeux Road yesterday, Chun Ling, 27, unemployed, was arrested and sentenced to two months' hard labour by Mr. K. Keen at the Central Magistracy this morning. Inspector Maier said defendant walked into the shop and while the attendants were busy made off with the singlet. He was seen by one of the shop folks who gave chase and arrested him. Defendant had previous convictions.

Pleading guilty to charges of unlawful possession of 200 cartridges of wood, two men, Chan Kong, and Wong Ping, 25, both unemployed, together with Chan Ngor, 24, married woman, were each sentenced to a fine of $2 or to stay in prison for 10 days by Mr. K. Keen, at the Central Magistracy this morning. Sergeant Dewar said defendants were seen carrying the wood in four bundles by a District Watchman in Robinson Road yesterday. He accepted defendants who after denying his accusations admitted that they had picked the wood up on a hillside. Besides the bundles were two heavy tree trunks.

PERRY SAID NOT TO BE COMING TO HONGKONG

London Newspaper Reports Far East Tour Abandoned

NOT GOING TO AUSTRALIA

MAY TAKE UP GOLF SERIOUSLY

NO CONFIRMATION AVAILABLE IN HONGKONG

TWO pieces of vitally interesting tennis news reached Hongkong yesterday. The first made our L.T.A. officials beam with satisfaction; the second, though they know nothing about it yet, will probably make them frown in disappointment. Dealing first with the frowns. Trevor Wignall, famous sports columnist of the London Daily Express categorically affirms that Fred Perry has cancelled his trip to Australia this year and will not appear in tennis exhibitions in China and Japan. That sounds like another Farwell to Arms.

Wants Golf Titles

I ENDEAVOURED to confirm this story locally, but those who are most likely to be in the know plead complete ignorance. So we shall have to take Mr. Wignall's word for it, unless we prefer to believe that he's writing through his hat. Says Mr. Wignall: "Perry is attached to a sports equipment firm in Australia, but his job will not be affected by the fact that he will not be a competitor in the many Australian tournaments in which he has been accustomed to play in the last four or five years." He is at present in California, but the probability is that he will be back in London within a month. He did not find it easy to come as a surprise to many to know that it is among his present ambitions to find enough time to become sufficiently proficient at golf to win some titles.

How Can He Do It?

SO now the cat is out of the bag! But I can't quite figure it out, for in the next breath Mr. Wignall goes on to hint very darkly (but none the less clearly) that Perry is determined to turn tennis professional. Given that he is, and will, how in the name of dollars, and cents, can he find time to become sufficiently proficient at golf? If Perry signs his name on the dotted line to Mr. Bill O'Brien's little contract it will guarantee him $20,000; but it will also mean that Perry will not have days and weeks at his disposal in order to disport himself on England's fairways (or even America's fairways). So far so good; golf is concerned I think he will be completely bunkered, stymied and right in the rough.

I Hope He's Wrong

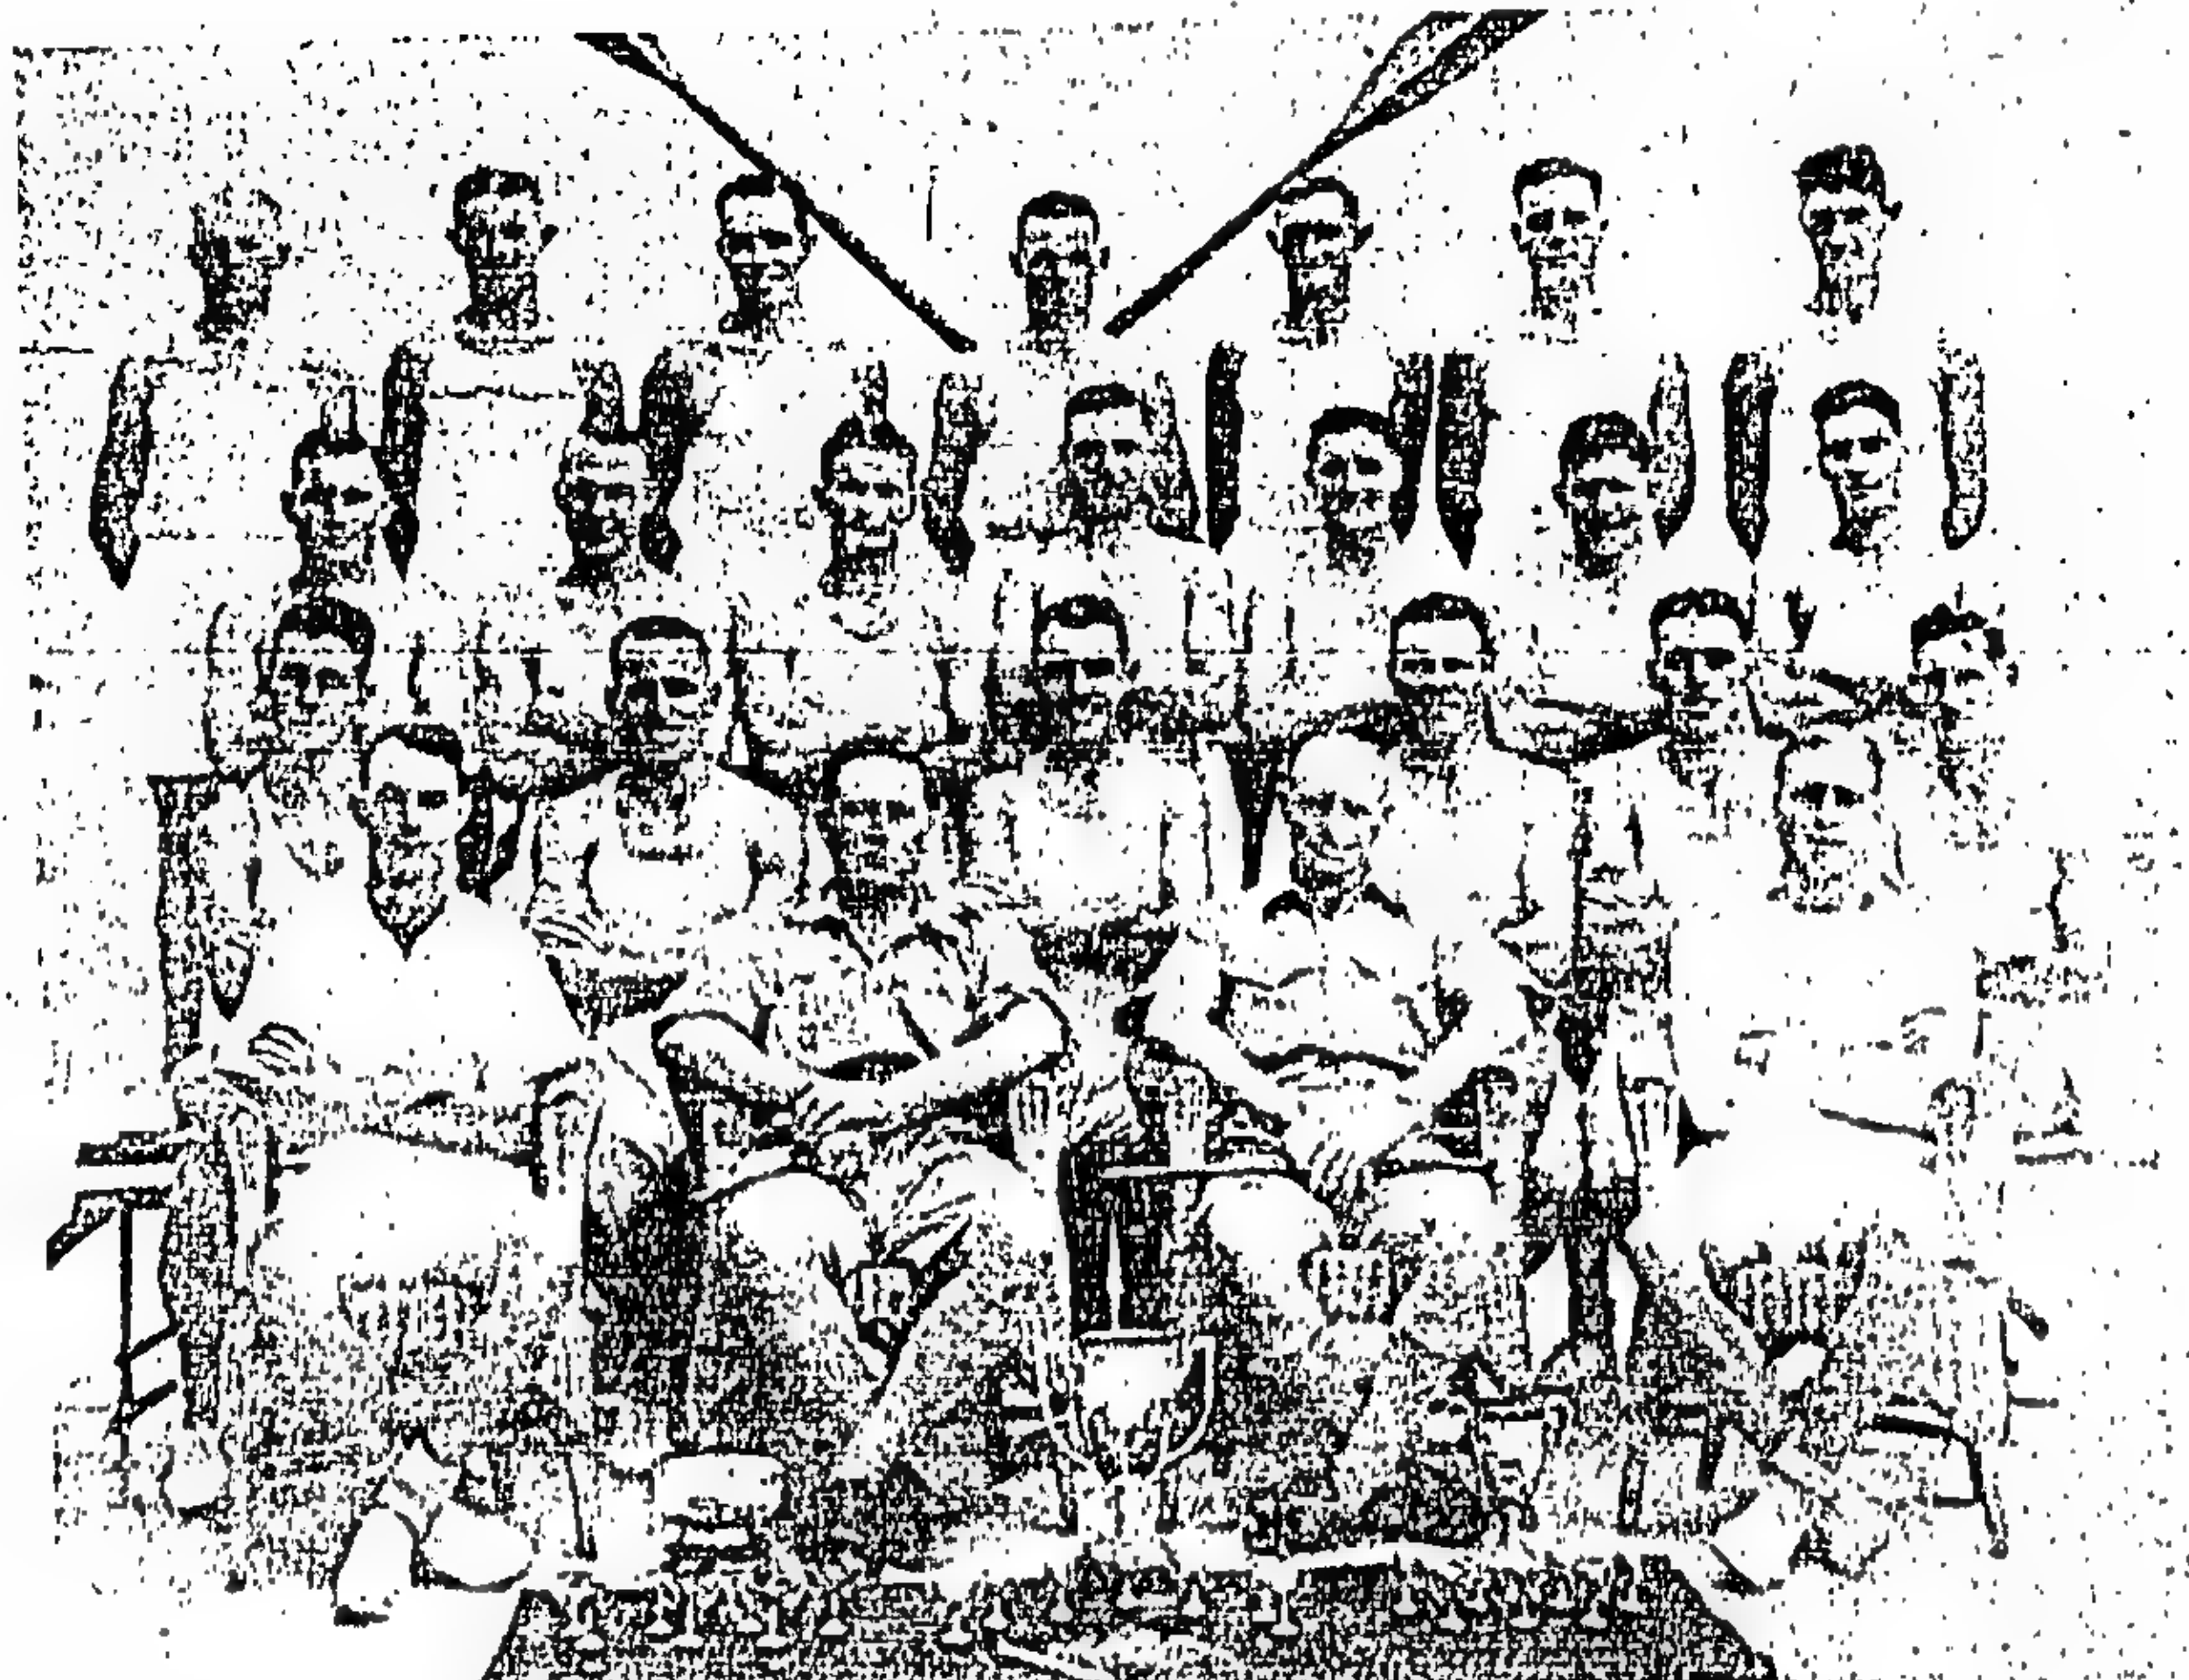

BUT all this isn't going to make Hongkong's L.T.A. officials frown. It's the second part of the first paragraph of these comments which will cause the trouble. Just as we (not to mention Gordon Lum) had made up our minds that we were to feast our eyes on the world's champion, comes this news that he is going to give us the miss in bulk. If true, it is very regrettable and a real blow to Hongkong. In fact it means a great disappointment to the Far East in general. This is one of the few occasions when I, as a newspaperman, hope that Trevor Wignall, as a newspaperman, is profoundly wrong. Fortunately the general public is not likely to be bothered by either.

Beams Of Satisfaction

NOW for the beams of satisfaction. Tilden has said "Yes" to everything the Hongkong L.T.A. has promised concerning the visit here of himself and Vines. And for this Mr. D. S. Green deserves a word of commendation, for he wrote a very charming letter on behalf of the Association to Tilden when the player first indicated that he was not keen on a special programme being arranged; the upshot is Tilden's cable published yesterday in the Telegraph. The only disconcerting point is that Miss Jane Sharp has fallen ill and must return to the United States. This really affects Shanghai more than it does Hongkong, for Canavarro has fixed up a programme which includes a singles between Miss Sharp and himself, leaving Tilden and Vines to figure in singles, and to play doubles with some of the expert Shanghai makers. But Hongkong, being without professional players or markers of outstanding ability could only introduce Miss Sharp into the programme by pitting her against the mule maestros on a handicap basis, a type of match which might or might not appeal to the public.

Three-Match Contest

AS it is Hongkong is to have four chances of seeing two of the greatest players the world has ever known in action against each other. For this privilege people in America have paid upwards of ten gold dollars, while here you can see them on the first day for one dollar and on the other three days at $3.50 a go. The best of three-sets match on the Monday will be a perfect curtain raiser for the best of five sets encounter to follow the next day. It will give the players the opportunity of getting acquainted with the court, the strangeness of Hongkong's sunlight (it is strange after (Continued on Page 9.)

HOCKEY

Volunteers Give Good Display

AGAINST THE ARMY

Fast and exciting exchanges featured the hockey match played yesterday on the Club green between the Hongkong Volunteers and an Army eleven. The result was a 1-1 draw, although the Volunteers had slightly the better of the game, and were unfortunate to have a goal disallowed in the closing ten minutes.

J. J. King, Volunteers' custodian gave an outstanding display, while another feature of the match was the appearance of G.E.R. Divett and R. A. Bates at full back. Neither had ever played in these positions before.

The Volunteers' attack was quite sprightly, although it is considered they would have done better if S. A. Fowler had been playing on the right wing instead of the left. Avtar Singh and Chowdhury who figured in the inside berths were inclined to be selfish, while Leonard at outside right, though a good trier, could not keep up to the hot pace set.

The Volunteers led once-all at the interval, Chowdhury scoring in the first five minutes, but early on in the second half Army equalised through Alif Din. Ten minutes from the close, Divett, Volunteers' forward, changed Fowler for the left wing to inside right and immediately an improvement was noticed. Fowler actually got the ball into the net during the last few minutes, but the goal was disallowed.

HOW PAM BARTON WON U.S. GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

London, Oct. 4. Miss Pamela Barton (Royal Mid-Surrey), the 19-years-old British women's golf champion, yesterday added the U.S. women's championship to her laurels when she defeated Mrs. Maureen Orcutt Crews 4 and 3 in the final at the Canoe Brook Country Club, New Jersey, U.S.A.

In the morning round Miss Barton was one down at the ninth but finished one-up at the end of the first 18 holes by holing a 47ft. chip shot at the 18th.

She was unfortunate, says Reuter, to be down at the turn. She played good golf, generally outstripping Mrs. Crews, but her putting was again inconsistent. The English girl was ten yards longer than her opponent at the first, which was halved in par five, but disaster overtook Miss Barton at the second hole. She sliced her drive into the ditch, played out boldly, but had the misfortune to see her ball hit a tree and bounce back. She reached the fairway safely at the second attempt, and took two more to reach the green. She had a seven for the par five hole.

A RECOVERY

Miss Barton halved the third in four, but missed another half at the fourth, where she failed from three feet and took three putts. After halving the eighth in par six, Miss Barton exploded from a bunker, and turned one down. Mrs. Crews made a great recovery to win the hole, laying her niblick dead to the pin after being bunkered with her second.

The English girl holed a 20 foot putt at the 19th to win it in four to five. At the 20th the British girl put her second shot on the green hole—high again to win in four to five to become three up. At the next, however, she sliced her drive into the trees, and playing for safety with her second, missed a six-foot putt. Each player took a three at the 22nd. Miss Barton played orthodox golf at the 23rd, which she took in four to five; her opponent's tee-shot struck a spectator and landed in the rough. Both took three putts at the 24th for sixes. Miss Barton was halved, stymied three feet from the pin.

Mrs. Crews made a great recovery after being in the rough at the next hole to halve it in three.

Three fine wooden shots put Miss Barton on the green at the 20th, and she holed a ten foot putt to win the hole in four to six.

Mrs. Crews took three putts at the 27th, and showed signs of nervousness, Miss Barton taking it in four to five to become five up.

Miss Barton was put in 38 on the second round, against Mrs. Crews' 42.

Scores out: Miss Barton: 4, 4, 5, 3, 4, 0, 3, 5, 4—38.

Mrs. Crews: 5, 5, 4, 3, 5, 6, 3, 6—42.

CHINESE & LAI WAH CUP GAME

Likely Appeal To Council

DISSATISFIED

(By "Veritas")

I understand that the Chinese will probably seek the jurisdiction of the Hongkong Football Association Council concerning their Lai Wah Cup match against the Army on Sunday last with which they are dissatisfied.

The Management Committee last night debated the subject but no official statement has been made. I enquired of the Chinese representative this morning whether he would care to offer a statement, but he declined, merely observing that no definite decision had been reached by the Chinese, although he thought it probable that the matter would be brought before the next Council meeting.

Unofficially I am told that the Chinese are dissatisfied with the referee's decision to play extra time, and secondly, that having made that decision, he abandoned the game making necessary a replay.

PRESS TO PLAY REFEREES

Association Keen

(By "Veritas")

The suggestion which I tentatively put forward at the conclusion of a recent meeting of the Hongkong Referees' Association that a Colony Press team plays a representative side of Colony referees was enthusiastically welcomed at last night's meeting of the Referees' Association.

It was decided to endeavour to arrange such a match, probably on behalf of charity.

It was also agreed that the referees' team should not include league players.

No details have yet been worked out, but it is certain that the Press will be willing to field a team, and the match, when it does come off, should possess sufficiently novel features to attract a big crowd.

SCOTLAND'S FOOTBALL TEAM

FOR GAME WITH IRELAND

London, Oct. 26. Five players have been drawn from English clubs to represent Scotland in the international football match against Ireland at Belfast on October 31.

Glasgow Rangers and Hearts will supply the remaining six players.

The English League club players who have been invited to appear for Scotland are Ancell (Newcastle), Massie (Aston Villa), McCulloch (Brentford) and Napier and Duncan of Derby.

The team is as follows: Dawson (Rangers); Anderson (Hearts); and Ancell (Newcastle); Massie (Aston Villa); Simpson (Rangers) and Brown (Rangers); Stuart (Hearts); Walker (Hearts); McCulloch (Brentford); Napier (Derby) and Duncan (Derby).—Reuter.

RAIN IS LIKELY FOR THE BIG RACE

CAMBRIDGESHIRE PROSPECTS

Newmarket, Oct. 26. Heavy rain is likely for the Cambridgeshire Handicap which is being run here on Wednesday, and this will make the going, which at present is firm, rather on the soft side, giving the lightweights a better chance.

The bookmakers are praying for a victory by an outsider as has happened many times in the long and varied history of this race, as it is stated that if one of the leading favourites win, they will pay out over £5,000,000.

There has been heavier betting this year, a feature being that women have been playing a more prominent part in punting than at any time during the last 50 years.—Reuter.

FINALIST IMPROVES TO SECOND FAVOURITE

Finalist, the Cambridgeshire runner which has been drawn in the Irish Sweep by a Kowloon syndicate, has improved in the betting to equal second favourite at 10 to 1, according to a Reuter message received last night.

The call-over is: 15/2 Dan Bulgor, 10 Noble King, Finalist, Pegomara, 100/7 Harina, 15 Esquemeling, 18 Laurence II, 20 Noble Turk, Holbrook, Commander III, 28 Halkan (offered), 30 (taken), 28 Daylona, 33 Tempest II, Stone Ginger (offered), 33 (taken), 33 Criska (offered), 35 Aldine, 40 Ineh Keith, 40 Hypothesis (offered), 50 Towton Moor (offered), 55 (taken), 50 Rough Rider (offered), 60 (taken), 60 Punyette, 100 Sally Andrews, Princess Herodene. Gay Venture has been scratched.

Sopwith Will Make New Attempt For U.S. Yacht Cup

MR. T. O. M. SOPWITH, Britain's champion yachtsman, has changed his mind about his two-year-old decision never to challenge again for the Americas Cup. In an exclusive interview, he told the Sunday Chronicle that he will race again next year in his new all-steel craft, Endeavour II.

"In 1934," he said, "I would never challenge again, but I have changed my mind," he said. "I want to bring that cup home to Britain. At the moment, negotiations are proceeding between the Royal Yacht Squadron and the New York Yacht Club, and in a few weeks a definite challenge will be announced."

"If I am asked I shall be only too pleased to take Endeavour II over to America for the race," Speaking of his new yacht, Endeavour II, Mr. Sopwith said: "I am certain that she will be as good a boat as our American rival. I shall do all I can to break the 30-year bogey which has kept the cup in America."

IT IS TIME WE MADE RUGBY
AN "ON-SIDE" GAMEAUSTRALIANS DON'T LIKE ENGLISH
RULES

RIGHT AND LOGICAL POINTS

(By E. G. Blackwell)

Mr. R. F. Anderson, joint manager of the Rugby League team in Australia, tells me that in many discussions he had with the leaders of the game "down under" they laid great emphasis on the contention that "ours is an on-side, not an off-side, game." Like most other slogans and catch phrases, this needs a lot of amplifying and explaining.

The Australians do not like our interpretation of the play-the-ball rule, nor the rule which places on-side a player standing in an off-side position when the ball has been kicked or played by an opponent.

A few seasons ago we ourselves recognized the injustice of a man being placed on side merely for touching an opponent, and the rule was altered to "kicked or played."

I am afraid, however, that this does not meet the case. Spectators, even after several seasons, do not appreciate the differences, but yell "all on-side!" when the ball touches an opponent, however accidentally.

LOGICAL INTERPRETATION
References for the most part have not the courage to resist such shouts, and one often sees players allowed to proceed when they should have been stopped.

In point of actual fact, a big percentage of intercepted passes could not be taken were the players nipping in not in an off-side position, yet according to rule a player cannot be off-side from an opponent's pass.

Then again, when the ball is passed forward the player receiving the pass is in an off-side position; and in Australia and New Zealand the offence is treated as such and a penalty kick awarded, instead of, as here, a scrum being ordered.

I believe the differentiation there is that when the ball is passed forward to a player on the run it is deemed a forward pass, but when the player is standing in an off-side position and the ball is passed forward to him he is regarded as off-side, and a penalty kick is ordered.

To my mind, this is a logical interpretation, yet I recall that when the Australians were here in 1920-30 and one of our referees penalised them in such circumstances they raised a storm of protest, and the Rugby League Council gave an official ruling that the decision of the referee in such circumstances should have been "a scrum."

The off-side rule undoubtedly needs complete overhaul. At present the rule makes it much too profitable for a player who lies off-side most of the game waiting to snap up an opportunity arising out of the mistakes of an opponent.

I think we should insert a clause to the effect that an off-side player must immediately take steps to put himself on-side.

This would prevent the growing practice of forwards lying within five yards of an opponent waiting for the ball, and not moving at all. Such players are rarely penalised, though, in my opinion, they should be, because of their very presence. In that position is calculated to obstruct or unnerve the opponent waiting to take the ball.

The rule says: "An off-side player shall not actively or passively obstruct an opponent," but if, say, a full-back knocks on, most referees allow play to proceed if the ball goes to one of the men who had been lying in an off-side position.

The ruling that a player cannot be off-side from an opponent's pass should be eliminated, as should be the sub-section on page 47 of the Official Guide which reads "when the ball has been kicked or played by an opponent."

A player who is lying off-side should only be placed on-side by one of his side running in front of him with the ball, or by one of his side who has been in front of him after having kicked the ball.

RULE A HANDICAP

The Australians, I believe, are immensely keen about changing the present state of affairs, and in my opinion they have right and logic on their side. Everything possible should be done to prevent players stealing an unfair advantage.

The rule as at present framed is a big handicap and discouragement to full-backs, in particular, showing the enterprise they should in cutting through and making openings for their three-quarters because of the fear of being tackled in possession.

If the question cannot be dealt with before the Australians come here next season, it should certainly be gone into with them, with a view to arriving at a uniform interpretation here and in Australia, and with the object of making on-side play more profitable than the waiting-for-something-to-turn-up policy of players who habitually lie off-side.

America and Europe), and of losing their sea legs. The fact that the players are going to have three best-of-five-set matches invites a suggestion to the L.T.A. It is that these three occasions be regarded as one complete contest so that interest in the players' re-appearance after the Manila trip will be sustained. I have no doubt the players would be happy to agree with this. In other words their meeting would be the best of three matches, rather than three distinct encounters.

W. C. Hung Wins K.C.C.

Championship

W. C. (Willie) Hung, former tennis interpreter, and one time finalist in the Colony open doubles championship, is making a big bid to win three of the events in this year's Kowloon Cricket Club tournament. On Sunday he won the club senior championship for the first time when he beat A. W. Ramsey in the final, 6-0, 6-0, 6-1. In the semi-final Hung overcame the doughty A. E. P. Guest in straight sets, which is a fair indication of his current form. Hung has also reached the final of the handicap singles, which is a fair indication of his current form. Hung has also reached the final of the handicap doubles, which is a fair indication of his current form. Hung has also reached the final of the handicap doubles, which is a fair indication of his current form.

The American football season is now under way, and here we see one of the novel methods they employ for training. This drill is designed to strengthen leg muscles and to improve balance.

Features of a recent murder case that are believed to have caused some public anxiety are discussed in this article.

by
D. N. PRITT,
K.C., M.P.

HUMAN JUDGMENT Can Be So FALLIBLE

So fallible that it is unsafe ever to inflict a wholly irrevocable penalty.

It is a commonplace that it is vital to public confidence in the administration of the law that justice should not merely be done, but should also manifestly appear to be done.

It is not sufficient that the whole legal machinery should command the confidence of lawyers; it should enjoy that of the general body of citizens also.

We know that judges and juries are not infallible; they must occasionally make mistakes. The ideal is that such care should be taken in the preparation and conduct of criminal cases that the public can and will accept the verdicts of juries as based upon the best available evidence and as free from error as human wisdom can achieve.

In no case is this more important than in trials for murder, where the penalty itself is death. Now the recent case of Charlotte Bryant has caused a certain amount of public anxiety, and has left doubts in many minds as to whether the high standard of care which we all expect has "manifestly appeared" to have been observed.

IT IS NOT SUGGESTED—IT IS not relevant to suggest—that an innocent woman has been hanged. But there is suspicion that in certain respects the care taken has fallen short of the highest standard, and this may be followed by apprehension that, if the standard is once relaxed, it may one day lead to the killing of some person for a crime of which he or she is innocent.

In these circumstances, it is important to see clearly what are the incidents in the case which have given rise to these anxieties and fears.

These incidents are two in number. Charlotte Bryant's husband died of arsenical poisoning, and she was accused of murdering him. Part of the evidence brought forward by the prosecution against her was to the effect that she had burnt in her copper fire a tin that had contained arsenic.

By way of corroboration of this evidence, the prosecution called an eminent scientific witness. Household coal always contains a small quantity of arsenic, and this witness stated that on analysis of the ashes of the fire in question he had found 149 parts in 1,000,000 of arsenious oxide.

He also stated that the normal amount of arsenious oxide to be found in the ashes of household coal is about 40 to 50 parts in 1,000,000; and the amount of 149 parts actually found in the ashes of this fire was so abnormal that in his opinion it was clear that arsenic in addition to that contained in the coal had been burnt in the fire in question.

Opinion may vary as to the exact importance of this particular item in the whole body of the evidence in the case. It was thought worthy remains that out of all the scientific gentlemen in England the prosecution was content, in a capital case, to rely upon a gentleman who, however honourable and however eminent, was not able to answer accurately on this particular technical point.

It is a scientific fact, established by long investigation of the combustion of various types of household coal, that an arsenic content eight or ten times greater than the 149 parts in question is fully consistent with no arsenic having been added to the fire—indeed, 149 parts is below, not above, the average.

NOW CHARLOTTE BRYANT WAS a woman of very slender resources. It would have been difficult for her to have provided herself in advance of the trial with the services of an expert witness to combat any mistaken evidence that might be given for the prosecution, even if it could have occurred to her advisers that such a precaution was necessary.

any kind want to know why all this suffering should be inflicted on men and women who really are the salt of the earth.

I am no politician, but it seems perfectly clear to me that any country carrying this load of misery is also carrying a load of mischief that may lead to serious consequences.

Slowly, thousands of good men, hard workers, tradesmen, proud, able, and good parents are being embittered. I have spent my time in the last four days talking with them about the future.

They feel like dead men, up in the North. They are slowly becoming haters of everything that has made them what they are to-day. Kind fathers have become gullen and quarrelsome. Mothers and wives are peevish and prone to cry for nothing. They have told me they have only been twice to the pictures in the last six years.

A Shock Middle-aged men have shown me the frayed cuffs of their jackets and said, "I have not had a new suit for seven years." When I returned to London after being through four days of gruelling inquiry into how the Means Test victims are living I was told, "You look as though you had just had a shock."

Yes, I have had a shock, and it is only because there are certain things one cannot say in a newspaper that I am not telling you all I saw and am not describing all the suffering that is going on in the "special" areas.

What is happening in the "special" areas is therefore the business of us all because it will eventually affect all our lives if it is allowed to continue.

The backbone of the nation is being comforted by the suffering borne by the unemployed shipyard workers, the miners and the dockers on the Means Test.

—To-day's Thought

By flight we often rush into the thick of our fate.

—LIVY.

But, soon after the trial, and before her appeal was heard, a well-known expert in coal, having read her evidence, pointed out that a mistake had been made; and when it was learnt that he was willing to give evidence on the point, an application was lodged with the Court of Criminal Appeal asking for leave to call this fresh evidence on the hearing of the appeal.

On the argument of the appeal, Mrs. Bryant's counsel stated clearly that the evidence of the scientific witness at the trial was incorrect on this point.

It is perhaps a pity that counsel for the prosecution did not then and there express publicly his agreement, but at any rate he indicated no dissent.

AND WE NOW KNOW FROM THE statement made by the Home Secretary in the House of Commons on July 16 that the judges in the Court of Criminal Appeal, on July 16, for the purpose of deciding the appeal, proceeded on the assumption that this item of evidence was mistaken, and did not "regard the matter referred to as affecting the conclusion reached."

Although it is well arguable that the item of evidence in question was of substantial importance, and although many experienced lawyers think it dangerous to assume that the plainest case to assume that any substantial piece of evidence cannot have affected the minds of the jury, it is not necessary to challenge the view of the Court of Criminal Appeal that the appeal should be dismissed.

What is disquieting—and this is the second of the two incidents that have caused anxiety—is that in dismissing the application for leave to call further evidence, without calling for argument from counsel for the prosecution, the Lord Chief Justice used the following words:

The ashes of a domestic fire might help to hang a woman.

"There is no occasion for the further evidence. The application is of the objectionable kind which we foresaw in a recent case when in very exceptional circumstances we admitted further medical evidence. This kind of possibility was adumbrated, and we set our faces like a flint against it. It would be intolerable if the Court were to listen to the afterthoughts of a scientific gentleman in a capital case or in any other case."

In dismissing the appeal itself, the Lord Chief Justice added: "It is not necessary to repeat what has already been said as to the application to call further evidence. It is only in the very rarest cases that the Court will hear the evidence of scientific witnesses who after the trial apply their minds to the evidence given in a case in which they were not called, and seek to say that a mistake has been made."

Lawyers may fully understand the position, and their faith in the Court will remain undiminished. But the views of laymen, if less well-informed, are actually much more important to public confidence.

WHAT WILL THEY THINK? Mistaken evidence, has been given in a capital case; it has not been actually acknowledged by the prosecution, but the Court, as is learnt later, is dealing with the case on the footing that it is mistaken.

Counsel for the prisoner asks leave to call a witness to prove that the evidence was mistaken. The Court does not say: "Do not trouble; we will deal with the case on the assumption that this is so." It says, instead, that the application is objectionable, that it would be intolerable to listen to the afterthoughts of a scientific gentleman, and that it is only in the rarest cases that the court will hear the evidence of scientific witnesses who "seek to say that a mistake has been made."

However clearly lawyers may understand that there is really no cause for anxiety, the fear seems only too well grounded that public disquiet must grow from such incidents as these.

The only conclusion that laymen are likely to draw is, I think, that the best of human wisdom and judgment are so fallible that it is unsafe ever to inflict a wholly irrevocable punishment.

ROUNDAABOUT

by The Showman

ANYONE who doubted that I was right on the inside of a High International Affairs must have been confounded by the report that President Roosevelt has grown a beard while on holiday.

Did I not tell you, when Mr. Montagu Norman, Governor of the Bank of England, said for America, that "he" was really the Bearded Woman of Wopps-on-the-Wold—Mr. Norman himself having taken the Bearded Woman's place at Blackpool?

I told you that this "President" is none other than the Bearded Woman. Roosevelt and Montagu have both disappeared—if you don't believe me, try to find the "Bearded Woman" this week at Blackpool! Try to find Mr. Montagu in America—and are, even now, in secret conference.

Our old friend from Wopps-on-the-Wold is holding the stage alone. When it is all over she will be shipped back to this country as a doorman.

Behind the B.B. Scenes

PROFESSOR JAMES has been praising B.B.O. announcers as "noble fellows," who read to us every night, "very often not knowing what the next line is going to bring for them."

Some of the staff who prepare the news announcer's script are awful teases. The other night an announcer had got as far as "The international situation has been complicated by..." Then he saw what the next line was going to bring him—"The Duce having insisted, this afternoon, on dancing the tango in ballet skirts before the British Embassy."

He stopped, coughed, remarked: "I think if you don't mind I will just straighten my tie," and was thus able to collect his wits and skip over the practical joker's insertion to the serious message. "Ah'm verri pleased w' yo," said Sir John to the Heralds. "Yer resource w' magnificence. Ah only wish yo hadna said yer tie wisna straight. That wis a reflection on the decency of the Corpporation."

MARKED BEASTS

CATTLE, they tell me, are going to be tattooed in the Punjab to combat the activities of cattle-lifters. The usual designs of peacocks, parrots, fishes, crossed flags, and wreathed portraits of the Bill of Bashan, I suppose. And I can imagine a gay young bull sidling into the tattooist's parlour one day, baring his chest, and bellowing shyly—"you can leave the hearts and the arrow, but could you possibly turn the name 'Champion Daisey' into 'Pride of the Punjab'?"

Labels

THERE is a man who is "always" referred to as the "million dollar speedway rider." This crass label is a curious one, and seems confined to newspapers. I can recall, quite recently, The Cycling Parson, The Knitting Postmistress, and The Hiking Cricketer.

Wags' Corner

A DEALER was trying to sell a broken-down, winded horse. "Look!" he said, insistingly, to a prospective buyer, "Look what a fine coat it has!"

"Yes," replied the other, "but I don't like its pants!"

THEY DON'T LIVE

"A SK every mother you meet who is nifty trying to keep her family on a Means Test allowance how she would set about feeding five people on 12s. 6d. a week."

That was what a housewife in Newcastle said to me when I asked her to tell me how she is managing to live on the Means Test.

"We don't live," she said with a grim smile. "That is the secret of the whole Means Test business. None of us are 'living'; we are struggling to exist."

I have now been four days on this investigation into Means Test poverty, and am appalled at the revelations of suffering that I am discovering for myself.

Forced from Home

Sitting by an empty kitchen grate in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Sowerby, 27, Eastbourne-gardens, Walker, Newcastle-on-Tyne, I heard this story of how the Means Test has completely broken up a once happy family.

Out of a family of ten, only two boys and one girl are left at home, and the two boys, aged sixteen and eighteen, both apprentices at the Naval Yard, Walker, earning between them nineteen shillings a week, are being forced to help feed their parents and thirteen-year-old sister.

This is a case where older sons and daughters have been forced away from home by the Means Test.

Mr. Sowerby, a shipyard worker, has been unemployed for years. Before his sixteen-year-old son started work he was allowed 33s. a week for himself, wife, son and daughter, nothing being given for the eighteen-year-old boy earning 10s. 4d. a week. But when a few weeks ago, the youngest boy started working for 8s. 6d. a week, seven shillings a week was deducted from his father's allowance, bringing it down to 26s. a week.

Trish family pays 6s. a week rent; insurance, 2s.; clothing clubs, 3s. 6d. (necessary to provide the working boys with boots, shirts and dungarees); doctor is, a week, as Mrs. Sowerby has been ill for years.

That leaves 12s. 6d. a week for food for the whole family of five.

Two sons and two daughters who tried to help their parents have left home because their small earnings, which were not enough to feed them, were taken into account, causing their father's allowance to be drastically cut.

One of the daughters earned 12s. for two weeks' work. Because of this 12s. was stopped from her father's Means Test allowance and the family was worse off than before, as the girl had been to pay. She left home.

The sons left home for the same reason.

"I used to get a pint of milk a day," Mrs. Sowerby said, "but I cannot afford it now. The boys need more food now they are working. They need clothes and boots, and what they are earning hardly feeds them."

The father of this family has given up everything but his tobacco, and even that has been cut down.

"It hurt me terribly," the mother said, "when I had to ask him to give up the eightpence I used to let him have for his week-end beer. But we couldn't afford it."

Tragic Eyes

Everywhere I have been it has been the same story. Grinding, callous poverty; bare cupboards; white faces; hopeless, tragic eyes.

I have seen children with infected hands, caused by malnutrition. One little girl has no finger nails. They are dropping off because her blood is dreadfully impoverished through poor feeding.

Men are afraid that if they get a job they will not be able to do the work. They feel sick and ill from lack of good food. Women look twenty years older than they are.

Life on the Means Test is one long nightmare—a fight against starvation and dejection brought on by hunger.

Recognition Of Rightists Possible

BRITAIN REACTS TO REBUFF LABOUR TAKES OTHER STAND

London, Oct. 26.
The Evening News to-day says it is hinted in official circles that Britain may recognise the provisional Rightist Government in Spain.

Britain considers less distastefully the prospect of recognising the Government of General Franco since the Madrid Government so brusquely refused the British offer to help in the exchange of prisoners and hostages, the paper asserts.—United Press.

LEFTIST SYMPATHY
Paris, Oct. 26.
A resolution calling upon the British and French Governments to take steps to re-establish complete freedom of trade in favour of the Spanish Government, in consequence of the failure of the Non-Intervention Agreement, was adopted to-day by a joint meeting of the International Federation of Trade Unions and Labour International.

The resolution also invites trade unions throughout the world to prevent supplies being sent to the Spanish rebels.—Reuter.

EXCHANGE DISCUSSED
London, Oct. 26.
The Spanish Ambassador, Senor Azcarate, paid a visit to the Foreign Office to-day when it is understood Mr. Anthony Eden discussed with him the British appeal to both parties engaged in the civil war in Spain for an exchange of prisoners held as hostages and the reply of the Madrid Government maintaining release of prisoners held in the capital would amount in effect to helping the insurgents.

The Foreign Secretary is believed to have pressed Senor Azcarate strongly on the matter and to have urged that the Madrid Government should take some measures calculated to reassure anxieties aroused outside Spain regarding the safety of the large number of prisoners in Madrid. The numbers of these prisoners are unofficially estimated at 14,000.

In the meantime no reply to the British appeal has been received from the authorities of the anti-government forces, but it is understood representations have met with good will.—British Wireless.

SHIPPING IMPROVES

London, Oct. 26.
A marked improvement in the position of shipping is revealed in the Chamber of Shipping's quarterly return, which shows that on October 1 there were laid up in ports of Great Britain and Ireland 175 vessels, of 402,935 tons net, which is a reduction of 99,284 tons or 19.8 per cent. on the figures for July 1 and a decrease of 109,251 tons or 21.3 per cent. compared with October 1 last year.—British Wireless.

NURSING SISTERS CHARGED FINED FOR TRAFFIC OFFENCES

Miss M. Hamiltonford, of the War Memorial Hospital, was summoned before Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistrate's Court this morning for driving her car, No. 1074, past the sign post on Mount Kellett Road, which is prohibited to traffic, at 1 p.m. on October 14.

Sub-inspector R. R. McEwen, prosecuting, said he was on special duty checking motor-cars on October 14, when defendant's car passed him. He did not know where the car went, but it passed the sign post.

Defendant said she parked her car outside the sisters' entrance of the Hospital.

A fine of $5 was imposed, and defendant was advised to apply for a permit.

Miss E. H. Giles, also of the War Memorial Hospital, summoned for driving her private car unattended in Wong Nei Chong Road, was not present in Court, but sent a letter to the Magistrate admitting the offence, and asking the case to be heard in her absence.

The car was stated by the police to have been left outside one of the main gates of the Hongkong Jockey Club on a race day.

Defendant was fined $5. Pleading guilty to a summons of having driven his car along Pinnation Road on The Peak, which is prohibited to traffic, without a permit, Mr. E. S. C. Brooks, of Hastings and Company, was fined $5.

Sergeant Hill stated that Mr. Brooks did not then have a permit as he had just moved up to The Peak, but had now secured one.

MARINE SURVEYOR CHARGED
W. R. K. Collings, of the Government Marine Surveyors' Office, appeared to answer a summons for having failed to keep to the left side of the road when rounding a bend in King's Road about 2.40 p.m. on October 14.

Sub-inspector said he was entirely ignorant of the alleged offence, and said he could not plead guilty.

Traffic-Sergeant Appleton said that on the afternoon of October 14, he was driving private car No. 2092 along King's Road, going from east to west. As he was rounding a left hand bend near the Hongkong Electric Company, private car No. 1540, driven by defendant, came towards him at a fairly fast speed on its wrong side of the road. He (Sgt. Appleton) had to swerve to the left to avoid him, and after defendant looked back and took defendant's number. He could not get hold of defendant then, and falling the next day, managed to see him two days later, and told him he was being summoned. Defendant then admitted driving the car on the day, but said he was ignorant of the incident.

Sergeant Appleton mentioned that the road at that particular point was 78 feet wide, and with defendant's car on the wrong side of the road, a space of 45 feet was left between his car and his proper edge of the kerb.

Mr. Schofield fixed hearing of the case for 12.15 p.m. on Tuesday, November 3.

SUCCEEDS DETERRING

The Hague, Oct. 26.
It is announced that Dr. J. E. F. de Kok will succeed Sir Henri Detering as Director-General of the Royal Dutch Petroleum Company.—United Press.

Increasing Competition From Japan

BRITISH BUSINESS MEN ALARMED
SINGAPORE TO TAKE ACTION?

Singapore, Oct. 26.
The Government is appointing a committee immediately to investigate the growth of Japanese competition in textiles and the rubber and shipping markets, at which British business men are becoming increasingly alarmed.

Introducing the Straits Budget to-day, His Excellency the Governor was questioned as to whether it was possible, under present-day conditions, to maintain the Colony's long-established trade policy.

The Governor replied that the matter was complicated but in his opinion a solution could be found if the business men gave their whole-hearted co-operation to the task.—Reuter.

ART EXHIBITION OPENED BY LADY CALDECOTT

A second exhibition of paintings by Mr. Luis Chan and sponsored by the Hongkong Working Artists' Guild, was formally opened at 11 o'clock this morning by Lady Caldecott. The exhibition, which is being held on the top floor of the Gloucester Hotel, is on view to the public until Thursday, October 29, from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. daily.

A bouquet of gladness was presented to Lady Caldecott by Annie Chan, eldest daughter of Mr. Luis Chan. On behalf of the Hongkong Working Artists' Guild, Mrs. E. M. Barrett, Secretary, presented Mrs. Chan, the artist's mother, with a bouquet of flowers.

The exhibition contains many fine examples of Mr. Chan's outstanding ability, and no art lover should miss the opportunity of seeing these splendid paintings.

PREMIER AGAIN IN HARNESS BUSY TIME AHEAD FOR PARLIAMENT

London, Oct. 26.
The Prime Minister, Mr. Stanley Baldwin, returned from Chequers to 10 Downing Street this afternoon. In view of the opening of the new Parliamentary session on Tuesday of next week and the large amount of business to be transacted in connection with the Government's legislative programme, it has been arranged that the Cabinet shall meet twice this week.

Parliament reassembles after the summer recess on Thursday and the prorogation ceremonies take place on Friday, so that Cabinet meetings will be held to-morrow and Wednesday. The newspapers suggest that the Cabinet will also be giving attention to foreign affairs, including the situation in Spain.—British Wireless.

BRITISH MOTOR EXPANSION BIG ORDERS PLACED AT OLYMPIA

London, Oct. 26.
It is estimated that contracts placed with British motor manufacturers during the ten days of the motor show at Olympia reached an aggregate value of £28,000,000, or £22,000,000 more than at last year's show.

The importance of the expansion of demand in the motor industry in its effects on national prosperity is shown by a computation of the Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders that last year the industry used 850,000 tons of iron and steel, 8,000,000 square feet of glass, 2,070,000 gallons of paint, and 100,000,000 board feet of timber, while it is estimated that 1,270,000 persons were gainfully occupied in the manufacture, sale, repair and operation of motor vehicles.—British Wireless.

TRUCE ARRANGED IN JARROW

MUNICIPAL ELECTION AGREEMENT

London, Oct. 26.
In connection with the march of 200 unemployed from Jarrow, the distressed Tyneside district, to present a petition to the House of Commons, which had the support of the three chief political parties in the area, a truce has been arranged there for the municipal elections which take place all over the country on November 2.

Only the retiring councillors have been nominated at Jarrow, by agreement between the three parties, and as a demonstration of a united community measures in view of the special measures in view of the failure of returning general prosperity to reach the derelict town.—British Wireless.
